Monday Slated As Big Day In Phone Dispute

Ohio Assembly Due To Meet; Portsmouth Police Chief Quitting
By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Two events closely linked with the long strike against the Ohio Consolidated Telephone Co. are scheduled for Monday.

One will see the veteran chief of police of Portsmouth hang up his badge on the day the city manager makes public his findings on police activities during strike disturbances in the Ohio River city.

The other will be the meeting at 1 p. m. Monday of the Ohio General Assembly, called into special session by Gov. Frank J. Lausche to consider a new law enabling the state to take over a public utility in an emergency.

Portsmouth Police Chief Hugh Ruddy has announced his retirement, after 33 years on the force, will be effective Jan. 1. But he asked City Manager R. E. Layton to grant him a leave of absence to run from Monday until the retirement begins.

The police department and Ruddy have been criticized by a citizen's group for what it said was police failure to avert demonstrations that resulted in the mid-October closing of Portsmouth exchanges of the Ohio Consolidated.

THE FIRM was struck by the Communications Workers of America July 15 in a dispute over provision of a new contract.

Ruddy and other Scioto County law officers may be called before the Ohio House Judiciary Committee when a special session of the Legislature convenes Monday.

They would be asked to tell of their efforts to preserve law and order during strike disturbances.

The Ohio CIO Council joined striking CWA in opposing Lausche's request for power to seize and operate utilities crippled by strikes.

The governor summoned the Legislature into special session after conferences between representatives of the union and Ohio Consolidated failed to end the strike.

Lausche said that even if the Legislature failed to grant him emergency seizure powers, he felt the session might lay the groundwork for laws to deal with utility strikes.

Legislative leaders of both parties expressed reluctance to act on Lausche's proposal, indicating that an administration-drafted bill might receive only perfunctory consideration.

Sen. C. Stanley Mechem (R-Athens), Senate majority leader, and House Speaker Roger Cloud (R-Logan) asserted that the regular session in January should handle legislation of such far-reaching importance. They said time would be too short in a special session of only a few days at most.

UNION SPOKESMEN expressed the hope that the special session would not enact Lausche's proposal. John R. Rooney, CIO Council secretary-treasurer, and J. Curtis Fletcher, national director of the Communications Workers, issued a joint statement that said:

"The proposal by the governor will not solve the basic problem involved but instead will merely prolong it. Solution to the problem can be achieved only by collective bargaining in good faith."

The union officials asserted that Ohio Consolidated has failed to negotiate in good faith. The dispute deadlocked over such issues as a union shop and classification of supervisory employees.

The officials said that seizure of a private utility would affect the rights of owners to conduct their business and the rights of labor and management to negotiate without interference.

In calling the special session, Lausche acted on a request of a Portsmouth citizens committee on law and order. The committee did not ask him to call out the Ohio National Guard to restore service but Lausche said he would do so if requested.

Ohio Consolidated officials termed the proposed law invalid on grounds that Congress has preempted that field of legislation.

Snow Removal Is Major Job

Lake Erie Area Now Digging Out After Being Paralyzed By Blizzard

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Workers labored in a giant snow removal job in the storm-swept areas in the eastern Great Lakes region today.

Biting cold and snow squalls hampered the work in western New York. However, only light flurries were reported in most other areas of the storm belt.

Army tanks, bulldozers and snow plows were passed into service in removing the tons of snow from highways and streets and restoring transportation and business to normal operation.

The cold weather spread across the snow belt, which stretched across the northeastern corner of Ohio, the northwestern section of Pennsylvania on eastward into upstate New York.

Trains and bus service was not operating on schedule in many cities. Thousands of cars remained stranded on snow-clogged highways. Many communities were isolated. In western New York, at least four deaths were attributed to the storm.

DRIFTS OF 10 feet were reported in western New York, which was hit by the storm which swept in off Lake Erie and Ontario. A blizzard was reported moving south toward the Mohawk Valley today. Up to 20 inches of snow was reported and temperatures were below zero in some areas.

Erie, Pa., one of the hardest hit cities with 33 inches of snow, continued in a state of emergency. Some 500 National Guard troops joined in the cleanup operations in the lakeport city of 130,000.

Opening two main Buffalo-Cleveland highways, routes 5 and 20, was a job undertaken by highway crews of Pennsylvania, Ohio and New York. All motorists were stopped from crossing New York into Pennsylvania.

One of the towns isolated, West Springfield, Pa., got food supplies dropped from two helicopters flown from Pittsburgh. More drops were planned today if roads remained unopened into the village of 1,500 west of Erie.

Springville, N. Y., a village of 4,000 some 30 miles south of Buffalo, also was snowbound.

Lyons Freed By Cincy Jury

Meter Reader Said Innocent In Slaying
CINCINNATI (AP)—Robert V. Lyons, freed of a first degree murder charge in the knifing death of a Cincinnati socialite says he hopes police find the "real murderer."

A jury of eight men and four women at 11:17 p. m. Friday agreed on full acquittal.

Lyons, 44, former city water meter reader, maintained that police forced him through threats and promises to confess the knife-slaying of Mrs. Audrey Evers Pugh in her exclusive Hyde Park home last April 11.

The defendant bowed and shook when the verdict was read. Spectators loosed a roar in Judge Carson Hoy's courtroom.

Lyons said, "Like I said before, I hope they get the real murderer of Mrs. Pugh" because "thereby it would take any doubt out of all the people's minds."

William F. Hopkins, defense attorney, said of the verdict, "I am utterly humble."

Hamilton County Prosecutor C. Watson Hoyer said, "The jury has the final word in these matters. The state has no choice other than to accept its decision."

The jury got the case at 4:14 p. m. After nearly two hours at dinner, the panel continued deliberations.

THE VERDICT came 16 minutes after the jury asked Judge Hoy to repeat his instructions on the possible verdicts, from first degree murder to acquittal.

A juror said two panel members had considered first degree manslaughter at that time, but voted for acquittal after the judge's explanation.

The victim's body was found by her husband, William Pugh, printing firm executive, when he returned from work.

The arrest came 45 days after Mrs. Pugh's death. On the day after being taken into custody, Lyons made a statement to police admitting he knifed Mrs. Pugh to death after she reprimanded him for knocking at the wrong door.

But he later disavowed the statement and said he is innocent.

The statement was one of the controversial points of the trial.

The defense charged that Lyons had been "brain-washed, tricked and given promises."

Detectives admitted the statement came after Lyons was shown a bogus fingerprint which his questioners asserted had been found in the Pugh home.

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—Edward R. Baird, a Norfolk attorney, was injured seriously while duck hunting Friday when he was struck by a low-flying plane.

Ex-Hungary Premier Said Kidnaped By Soviet Cops

New Pressure Being Put On Britain, France

Immediate Withdrawal From Egypt Demanded In U.N. Resolution

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—Behind-the-scenes pressure mounted today to get Britain and France to pinpoint a withdrawal of their armed forces from Egypt. It came as the U. N. General Assembly called a special weekend meeting on the thorny Suez invasion issue.

The Assembly prepared to act on a resolution by 21 Asian-African nations for an immediate pullout from Egypt by the two Western powers and Israel. Many delegates appeared uncertain how they would vote. The U. S. said it would back it.

The uncertainty apparently resulted from reports that Canada and other commonwealth nations had urged Britain and France to give a time limit for withdrawing, thus avoiding the need for a resolution.

British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd told the Assembly Friday Britain would keep forces at Port Said at the North end of the Suez Canal until London felt the U. N. police force could effectively carry out its job.

British officials at Port Said reported the already promised withdrawal of one battalion of British troops would begin Monday.

ANNOUNCEMENT of the time for the first British withdrawal came after Gen. Sir Charles Keightley, over-all commander of the British-French forces in Egypt, flew to Port Said from Cyprus. He reported:

"Our withdrawal will be related to the United Nations arrival; as fast as the U. N. troops arrive, the British and French will get out."

France has reported that about one-third of her forces have been pulled out of Egypt. Israel said she has pulled back to some degree on all Egyptian fronts. Neither gave details.

Britain's refusal to agree to Assembly demands for immediate withdrawal touched off an angry rejoinder from the Russians.

Soviet Foreign Minister Dmitri Shepilov accused Lloyd of setting up conditions for pulling out. He said the U. N. should take steps to end what he called British "stalling."

Shepilov said that if and when the British and French do pull out of the Canal area the U. N. force would have no purpose there and should join U. N. detachments along the armistice lines between Israel and Egypt.

Egypt's Foreign Minister Mahmoud Fawzi declared his nation's sovereignty was being infringed. He also said presence of the troops of the three powers was holding up the clearing of the debris-choked canal and other vital matters.

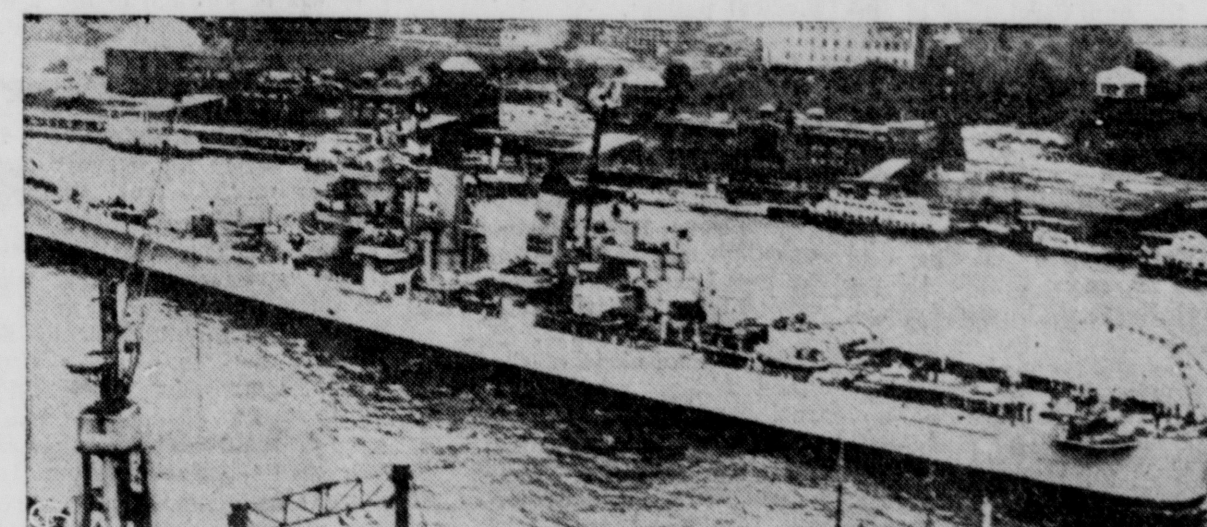

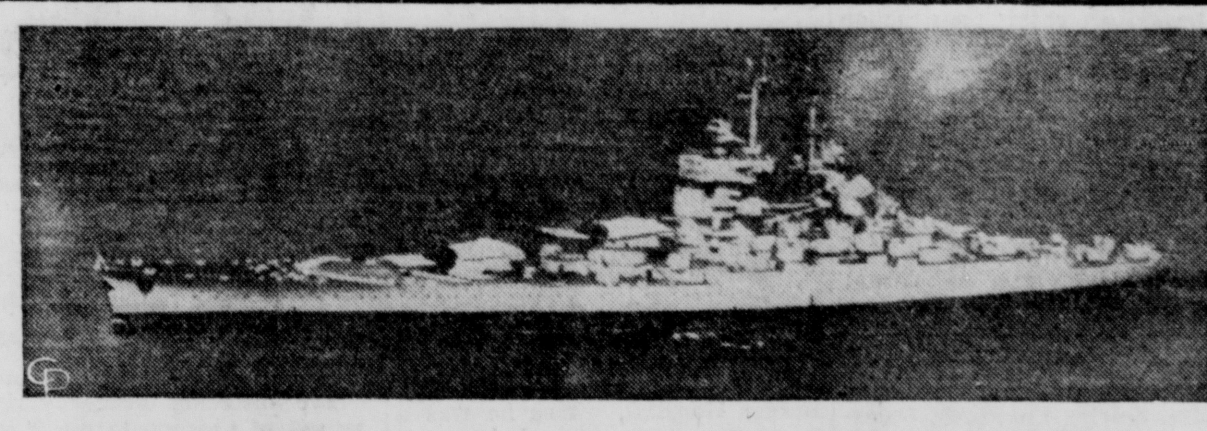

"The invading forces must withdraw immediately," Fawzi said, "and by immediately, I do mean in a matter of a very few days."

Boy's Heroic Effort Stifled By Death
WARRENTON, Va. (AP)—When fire broke out in the house while his father was at work Friday, 5-year-old John Thomas Dovell ran for help for his mother and her three other children.

State police said the youngster raced from a side road onto heavily traveled U. S. 15-29 eight miles south of here directly into the path of a car.

The youngster was killed instantly. The fire at the Dovell home was put out with little damage and no injuries.

Federal Court Order Eyed In Dock Strike

WASHINGTON (AP)—The federal government moves into court today to end the crippling, nine-day Atlantic and Gulf Coast waterfront strike.

Operating under the complicated national emergency provisions of the Taft-Hartley Law, Justice Department lawyers awaited only formal instructions to seek in New York Federal District Court an order ending the walkout for 80 days.

The battery of government attorneys and labor relations experts working on the case were aiming to get the struck ports back working again Monday. The striking International Longshoremen's Assn. said it would comply with the court's order.

However, Louis Waldman, I.L.A. attorney, said he planned to be in court when government attorneys arrive, and to enter objections to an injunction any broader "than should be."

The walkout has idled 60,000 longshoremen in East and Gulf Coast ports, tied up some 200 ships and caused a tremendous pileup of cargo. The railroads have put an embargo on further freight movement to the struck port areas until the strike is ended. The strike has cost an estimated $20 million a day.

Ohio Hog Prices Seen On Climb
COLUMBUS (AP)—Monday and Tuesday may be big days for Ohio hog markets, the state agriculture department believes.

The department said, "opinions are that if Friday's price ($16) can hold for Monday and Tuesday of next week, hog prices will probably improve more by Jan. 1, possibly to $17.50-$18."

The sharp increase in hog prices Friday "was rather unexpected and not fully explained," the department said, adding the consensus was that they represented two days' receipts because of the Thanksgiving holiday.

Supply being too tight for demand, and with some indication of increased kills by some major packers, the price went up, the department explained.

New Mexico Tree Selected For Ike
ALAMOGORDO, N. M. (AP)—The nation's community Christmas tree is on its way to the White House lawn in Washington after being carefully moved from its home in the Lincoln National Forest of New Mexico Friday.

The 65-foot Englemann spruce was cut at an altitude of 9,200 feet, wrapped in burlap and sprayed with a special wax preservative. It will be transported on two railroad flatcars.

President Eisenhower will throw the switch lighting the tree on December 20 and inaugurate a pageant of peace by broadcasting a worldwide Christmas message.

Slaying Of 2 Akron Clerks Laid To Killer Now On Parole

AKRON (AP)—A customer walked into the County Line Grocery at nearby Uniontown Friday night and found the bodies of two clerks lying on the floor. Both had been shot in the back and chest.

Police shortly after intensified their search for 42-year-old Leroy Keith, sought in the slaying of an Akron executive.

There were no witnesses to the shooting of Raymond Amodio, 30, of Canal Fulton, son of the grocery store's owner, and Paul Cain, 35, of Cuyahoga Falls, a parttime employee. No one heard the shots.

But 25 minutes after discovery of the double shooting, Stark County sheriff's deputies said an auto sped past flames around an accident scene south of Canton.

Sgt. V. J. Smith of the Akron police said the license number of the car tallied with that of an auto believed used by Keith.

Stark County deputies said the bullets which killed the two men were of the same caliber as the one which killed Coburn E. Von Gunten, 49, last Wednesday in Akron. Von Gunten, an expeditor for an Akron machinery and engineering firm, was shot as he sat in his parked car.

KEITH, FROM Youngstown, was paroled last summer from Ohio Penitentiary after serving a sentence for a 1934 slaying. Akron Detective Chief Carroll Cutright said a 16-year-old boy picked up for questioning had told police Keith wanted Von Gunten's car for use in a holdup.

Stark County deputies said money scattered on the floor of the grocery indicated the robber had fled in haste after rifling the cash register. They said up to $600 was missing from the store.

A small order of groceries was on the counter. Officers said it looked as though the robber had ordered the groceries, then started shooting when one of the clerks opened the cash register.

14 Americans Feared Among 34 Killed In French Crash
PARIS (AP)—A New York-bound Italian airliner fell in flames on a tiny French village today, killing 34 of the 36 persons aboard.

The other two persons aboard the plane, a man and a woman, were hospitalized. A youth sleeping in a home struck by the falling plane was reported injured seriously.

At least 14 Americans were reported aboard the plane. Guido Cantelli, noted Italian orchestra conductor, also was on the passenger list.

The four-engine DC6B had just taken off from Paris' Orly Airfield, its first stop on the flight to Rome. It carried a full load of fuel. Suddenly it pitched downward toward the village of Paray Vieille Poste, about two miles beyond the airport runway.

The airliner first grazed a two-story building. Then it plunged burning into a residence.

Spewing flames destroyed another small building nearby. The plane was smashed almost beyond recognition.

Towering columns of smoke and flame belched high above the village in the early morning darkness as the craft's 5,000 gallons of gasoline burst into fire.

As daylight broke over the smoldering wreckage, French and Italian investigators began the arduous task of attempting to identify the blackened bodies and fix the cause of the mishap.

Spokesmen for the airline in New York listed the following persons as American citizens aboard the plane:

Elaine Banfi; Majorie Paris of San Francisco, a United Airlines tour consultant; Betty Green, vice president of the Independent Retailers' Assn., New York City; Roy Cox.

Nicholas De Leo; Toni De Leo; Mildred Kador, identified as the operator of a New York City public relations firm.

Carol Shetz; Vivian Shetz; Olga Merrina; Sarah Merrina; Antonietta Merrina; the Rev. Pietro Brecchi, and Gilberto Splendito.

The spokesman said no other hometowns or other identification were available.

Nagy Feared Forced To Go To Romania

Yugoslavia Demands Full Explanation Of 'Betrayal' By Reds

VIENNA (AP)—Promised safety by the puppet Hungarian regime, former Premier Imre Nagy left his refuge in Budapest's Yugoslav Embassy two days ago but apparently fell into the hands of Russian security police.

The action threatened to bring another explosion inside revolt-shattered Hungary and send repercussions through the Communist bloc of nations.

Today, the Red puppets were not discussing the Nagy case. Instead, they accused the United States of operating a secret radio transmitter in its Budapest legation.

The government of Premier Janos Kadar, who replaced Nagy at Soviet order, protested to U. S. minister Edward T. Wiles that the alleged radio transmitter violated "Hungarian sovereignty."

If there is a transmitter in the American legation it has been installed in the last two weeks. The legation had no direct communication with the outside world in the week following the Russian attack, when American correspondents also took refuge there.

WAILES and a handful of American diplomats remained in the legation after the correspondents were allowed to leave Hungary.

Yugoslavia charged Nagy and 31 companions were kidnaped in betrayal of a promise to let them return safely to their homes.

The official Budapest Radio and the Soviet News agency Tass said Nagy and his followers went of their own free will to neighboring Romania, a tightly locked Soviet is the first step to Siberia.

Budapest Radio said Nagy and his party had "expressed a desire to live in another people's democracy" and had gone to Romania.

The explanation was believed by few. If Nagy were to seek refuge in another country, most Hungarians believe he would pick Yugoslavia where President Tito's ideas are close to his own.

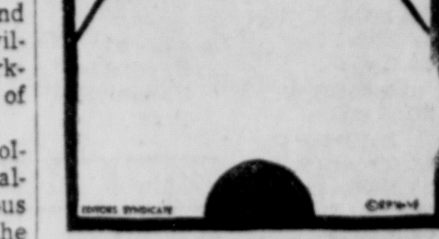

Tito's government demanded an explanation from Hungary. The Yugoslavs declared that if Nagy and the others were not permitted to return to their homes Yugoslavia would regard it as "not only a flagrant breach of the existing friendly relations between the two countries but also of the generally recognized norms of international law."

Yugoslavia said the Hungarian government had agreed in writing to guarantee Nagy's safe return home. He and his followers left the embassy Thursday.

DROODLES

"SPIDERS PLAYING LEAP FROG"

As this excellent Droodle so dramatically points out, Spiders don't just hang around the web doing nothing during those long winter months when the flies have all flown South. Some, like the two in this Droodle, play leap frog and other amusing games like Dive in the Soup, Stick on the Wet Paint and Dodge the DDT, while others get part time jobs in Boris Karloff movies and haunted houses. Once in a while, of course, a non-conformer like the Black Widow will try to live things up by biting a civilian, which makes it miserable for the rest of the group. But, by and large, Spiders are easy-going insects that are quite useful. Especially if you're trying to think up Droodles.

He is Dr. Eugen Gerstenmaier, president of the lower house of the West German Parliament, and a survivor of the Nazi purge that followed the attempt on Adolf Hitler's life in July 1944.

New Pressure Being Put On Britain, France

Immediate Withdrawal From Egypt Demanded In U.N. Resolution

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) — Behind-the-scenes pressure mounted today to get Britain and France to pinpoint a withdrawal of their armed forces from Egypt. It came as the U. N. General Assembly called a special weekend meeting on the thorny Suez invasion issue.

The Assembly prepared to act on a resolution by 21 Asian-African nations for an immediate pullout from Egypt by the two Western powers and Israel. Many delegates appeared uncertain how they would vote. The U. S. said it would back it.

The uncertainty apparently resulted from reports that Canada and other commonwealth nations had urged Britain and France to give a time limit for withdrawing, thus avoiding the need for a resolution.

British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd told the Assembly Friday Britain would keep forces at Port Said at the North end of the Suez Canal until London felt the U. N. police force could effectively carry out its job.

British officials at Port Said reported the already promised withdrawal of one battalion of British troops would begin Monday.

ANNOUNCEMENT of the time for the first British withdrawal came after Gen. Sir Charles Keightley, over-all commander of the British-French forces in Egypt, flew to Port Said from Cyprus. He reported:

"Our withdrawal will be related to the United Nations buildup; as fast as the U. N. troops arrive, the British and French will get out."

France has reported that about one-third of her forces have been pulled out of Egypt. Israel said she has pulled back to some degree on all Egyptian fronts. Neither gave details.

Britain's refusal to agree to Assembly demands for immediate withdrawal touched off an angry rejoinder from the Russians.

Soviet Foreign Minister Dmitri Shepilov accused Lloyd of setting up conditions for pulling out. He said the U. N. should take steps to end what he called British "stalling."

Shepilov said that if and when the British and French do pull out of the Canal area the U. N. force would have no purpose there and should join U. N. detachments along the armistice lines between Israel and Egypt.

Egypt's Foreign Minister Mahmoud Fawzi declared his nation's sovereignty was being infringed. He also said presence of the troops of the three powers was holding up the clearing of the debris-choked canal and other vital matters.

"The invading forces must withdraw immediately," Fawzi said, "and by immediately, I do mean in a matter of a very few days."

Boy's Heroic Effort Stifled By Death

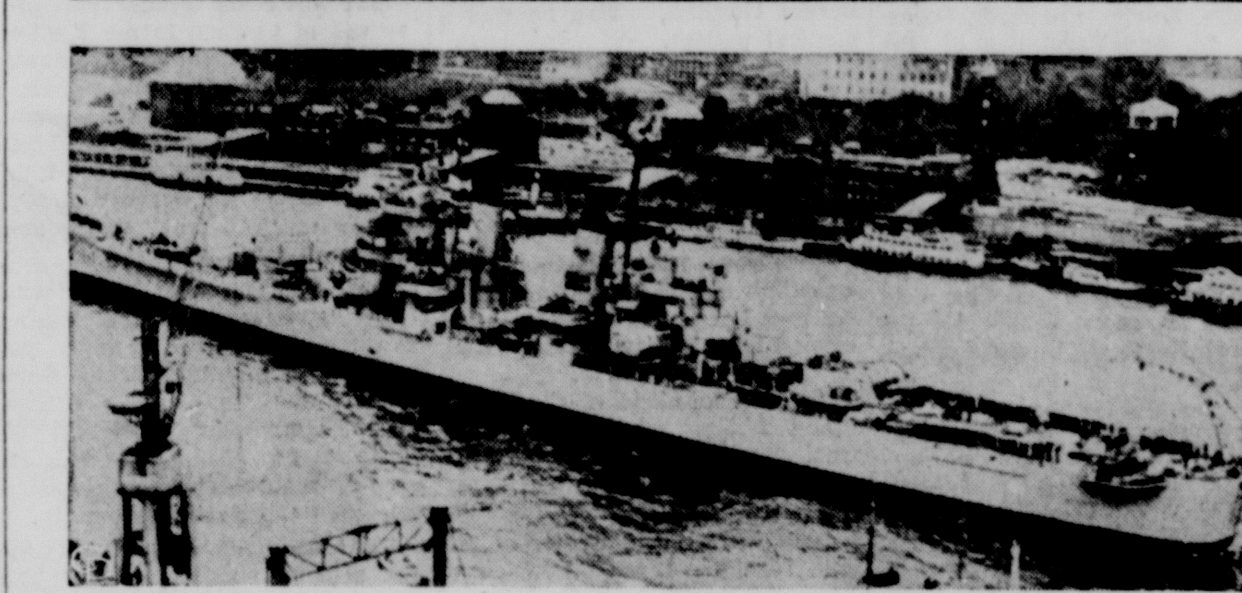

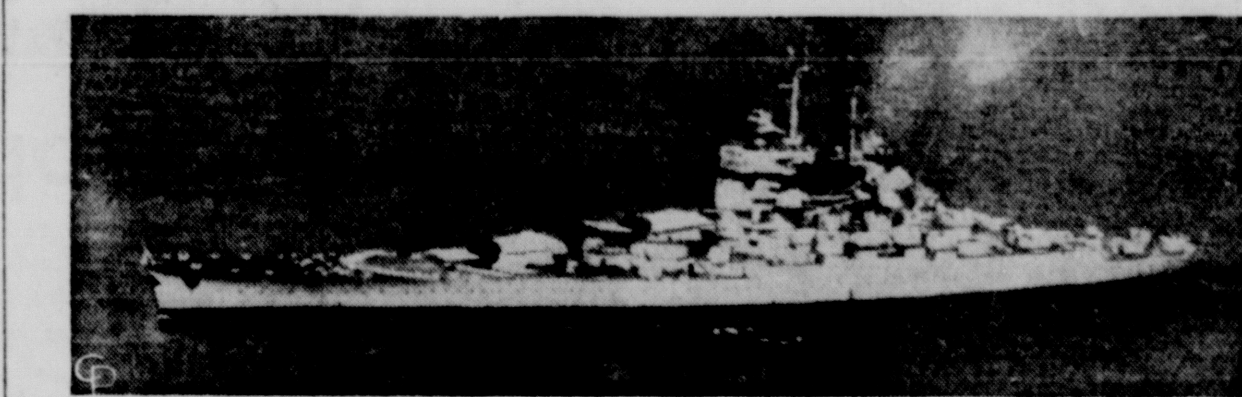

WARRENTON, Va. (AP) — When fire broke out in the house while his father was at work Friday, 5-year-old John Thomas Dovell ran for help for his mother and her three other children.

State police said the youngster raced from a side road onto heavily traveled U. S. 15-29 eight miles south of here directly into the path of a car.

The youngster was killed instantly. The fire at the Dovell home was put out with little damage and no injuries.

Federal Court Order Eyed In Dock Strike

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government moves into court today to end the crippling, nine-day Atlantic and Gulf Coast waterfront strike.

Operating under the complicated national emergency provisions of the Taft-Hartley Law, Justice Department lawyers awaited only formal instructions to seek in New York Federal District Court an order ending the walkout for 80 days.

The battery of government attorneys and labor relations experts working on the case were aiming to get the struck ports back working again Monday. The striking International Longshoremen's Assn. said it would comply with the court's order.

However, Louis Waldman, ILA attorney, said he planned to be in court when government attorneys arrive, and to enter objections to an injunction any broader "than should be."

The walkout has idled 60,000 longshoremen in East and Gulf Coast ports, tied up some 200 ships and caused a tremendous pileup of cargo. The railroads have put an embargo on further freight movement to the struck port areas until the strike is ended. The strike has cost an estimated $20 million a day.

Ohio Hog Prices Seen On Climb

COLUMBUS (AP) — Monday and Tuesday may be big days for Ohio hog markets, the state agriculture department believes.

The department said, "opinions are that if Friday's price ($16) can hold for Monday and Tuesday of next week, hog prices will probably improve more by Jan. 1, possibly to $17.50-$18."

The sharp increase in hog prices Friday "was rather unexpected and not fully explained," the department said, adding the consensus was that they represented two days' receipts because of the Thanksgiving holiday.

Supply being too tight for demand, and with some indication of increased kills by some major packers, the price went up, the department explained.

New Mexico Tree Selected For Ike

ALAMOGORDO, N. M. (AP) — The nation's community Christmas tree is on its way to the White House lawn in Washington after being carefully moved from its home in the Lincoln National Forest of New Mexico Friday.

The 85-foot Englemann spruce was cut at an altitude of 9,200 feet, wrapped in burlap and sprayed with a special wax preservative. It will be transported on two railroad flatcars.

President Eisenhower will throw the switch lighting the tree on December 20 and inaugurate a pageant of peace by broadcasting a worldwide Christmas message.

Slaying Of 2 Akron Clerks Laid To Killer Now On Parole

AKRON (AP) — A customer walked into the County Line Grocery at nearby Lakontown Friday night and found the bodies of two clerks lying on the floor. Both had been shot in the back and chest.

Police shortly after intensified their search for 42-year-old Leroy Keith, sought in the slaying of an Akron executive.

There were no witnesses to the shooting of Raynold Amodio, 30, of Canal Fulton, son of the grocery store's owner, and Paul Cain, 35, of Cuyahoga Falls, a part-time employee. No one heard the shots.

But 25 minutes after discovery of the double shooting, Stark County sheriff's deputies said an auto sped past flames around an accident scene south of Canton.

Sgt. V. J. Smith of the Akron police said the license number of the car tallied with that of an auto believed used by Keith.

Stark County deputies said the bullets which killed the two men were of the same caliber as the one which killed Coburn E. Von Gunten, 49, last Wednesday in Akron. Von Gunten, an expeditor for an Akron machinery and engineering firm, was shot as he sat in his parked car.

KEITH, FROM Youngstown, was paroled last summer from Ohio Penitentiary after serving a sentence for a 1934 slaying. Akron Detective Chief Carroll Cutright said a 16-year-old boy picked up for questioning had told police Keith wanted Von Gunten's car for use in a holdup.

Stark County deputies said money scattered on the floor of the grocery indicated the robber had fled in haste after rifling the cash register. They said up to $600 was missing from the store.

A small order of groceries was on the counter. Officers said it looked as though the robber had ordered the groceries, then started shooting when one of the clerks opened the cash register.

14 Americans Feared Among 34 Killed In French Crash

PARIS (AP) — A New York-bound Italian airliner fell in flames on a tiny French village today, killing 34 of the 36 persons aboard.

The other two persons aboard the plane, a man and a woman, were hospitalized. A youth sleeping in a home struck by the falling plane was reported injured seriously.

At least 14 Americans were reported aboard the plane. Guido Cantelli, noted Italian orchestra conductor, also was on the passenger list.

The four-engine DC6B had just taken off from Paris' Orly Airfield, its first stop on the flight to Rome. It carried a full load of fuel. Suddenly it pitched downward toward the village of Paray Vieille Poste, about two miles beyond the airport runway.

The airliner first grazed a two-story building. Then it plunged burning into a residence.

Spewing flames destroyed another small building nearby.

The plane was smashed almost beyond recognition.

Towering columns of smoke and flame belched high above the village in the early morning darkness as the craft's 5,000 gallons of gasoline burst into fire.

As daylight broke over the smoldering wreckage, French and Italian investigators began the arduous task of attempting to identify the blackened bodies and fix the cause of the mishap.

Spokesmen for the airline in New York listed the following persons as American citizens aboard the plane:

Elaine Banfi; Majorie Paris of San Francisco; a United Airlines tour consultant; Betty Green, vice president of the Independent Retailers' Assn., New York City; Roy Cox.

Nicholas De Leo; Toni De Leo; Mildred Kaldor, identified as the operator of a New York City public relations firm.

Carol Shetz; Vivian Shetz; Olga Merrina; Sarah Merrina; Antonietta Merrina; the Rev. Pietro Brechli, and Gilberto Splendito.

The spokesman said no other hometowns or other identification were available.

Nagy Feared Forced To Go To Romania

Yugoslavia Demands Full Explanation Of 'Betrayal' By Reds

VIENNA (AP) — Promised safety by the puppet Hungarian regime, former Premier Imre Nagy left his refuge in Budapest's Yugoslav Embassy two days ago but apparently fell into the hands of Russian security police.

The action threatened to bring another explosion inside revolt-shattered Hungary and send repercussions through the Communist bloc of nations.

Today, the Red puppets were not discussing the Nagy case. Instead, they accused the United States of operating a secret radio transmitter in its Budapest legation.

The government of Premier Janos Kadar, who replaced Nagy at Soviet order, protested to U. S. minister Edward T. Wiles that the alleged radio transmitter violated "Hungarian sovereignty."

If there is a transmitter in the American legation it has been installed in the last two weeks. The legation had no direct communication with the outside world in the week following the Russian attack, when American correspondents also took refuge there.

WILES and a handful of American diplomats remained in the legation after the correspondents were allowed to leave Hungary.

Yugoslavia charged Nagy and 31 companions were kidnaped in betrayal of a promise to let them return safely to their homes.

The official Budapest Radio and the Soviet News agency Tass said Nagy and his followers went of their own free will to neighboring Romania, a tightly locked Soviet is the first step to Siberia.

Budapest Radio said Nagy and his party had "expressed a desire to live in another people's democracy" and had gone to Romania.

The explanation was believed by few. If Nagy were to seek refuge in another country, most Hungarians believe he would pick Yugoslavia where President Tito's ideas are close to his own.

Tito's government demanded an explanation from Hungary. The Yugoslavs declared that if Nagy and the others were not permitted to return to their homes Yugoslavia would regard it as "not only a flagrant breach of the existing friendly relations between the two countries but also of the generally recognized norms of international law."

Yugoslavia said the Hungarian government had agreed in writing to guarantee Nagy's safe return home. He and his followers left the embassy Thursday.

DROODLES

By ROGER PRICE

"SPIDERS PLAYING LEAP FROG"

As this excellent Droodle so dramatically points out, Spiders don't just hang around the web doing nothing during those long winter months when the flies have all flown South. Some, like the two in this Droodle, play leap frog and other amusing games like Dive in the Soup, Stick on the Wet Paint and Dodge the DDT, while others get part time jobs in Boris Karloff movies and haunted houses. Once in a while, of course, a non-conformist like the Black Widow will try to live things up by biting a civilian, which makes it miserable for the rest of the group. But, by and large, Spiders are easy-going insects that are quite useful. Especially if you're trying to think up Droodles.

Military Order Of Cootie Plans District Meeting At Local VFW

Members of the Second District of the Military Order of Cootie will hold their winter conference at the Circleville Veterans of Foreign Wars post home on N. Court St. Sunday.

The Military Order of Cootie was organized in 1920 as a fun-making social organization. The organization soon afterwards became affiliated with the VFW of the United States, later becoming the honor degree of this organization.

The main purposes of the Order of Cootie are to promote social and reunion functions among its members, and to keep alive the spirit of optimism and humor so characteristic of American servicemen.

MEMBERS of the order, whose motto is "keep them smiling in beds of white", make monthly visits to hospitals maintained by the Veterans Administration. They also pay visits to other hospitals.

In 1955, Cootie members visited approximately 693,008 disabled veterans in hospitals throughout the nation. The organization traveled over 733,820 miles and spent $744,662 for this specific purpose of making patients more comfortable and happy.

The Cooties are also well-known for their efforts in community betterment projects. An example of this nationwide drive is an outdoor basketball court the local group has constructed at the Pickaway County Children's Home.

The new black-top cage court will be officially turned over to the home within the next few days. The basketball court construction was planned and directed by Pup Tent No. 71, the local Cootie order.

Americans Opening Hearts To Aid Hungarian Refugees

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Americans are opening their hearts and hearths to Hungarian refugees.

Rich and poor have offered money, food, clothing and homes for the frightened victims of Soviet terror in Hungary.

Federal, state and city government agencies are lending a hand. Churches, schools and colleges have been quick with pledges.

The first refugees—wary men, women and children—landed at McGuire Air Force Base in New Jersey last Wednesday. Several hundred more arrived in planes there and at Milwaukee later.

Two more plane loads are due at McGuire today.

The refugees are the vanguard of 5,000 authorized by President Eisenhower to enter the United States. Even more may follow.

Meanwhile, the offers of aid are growing into a flood.

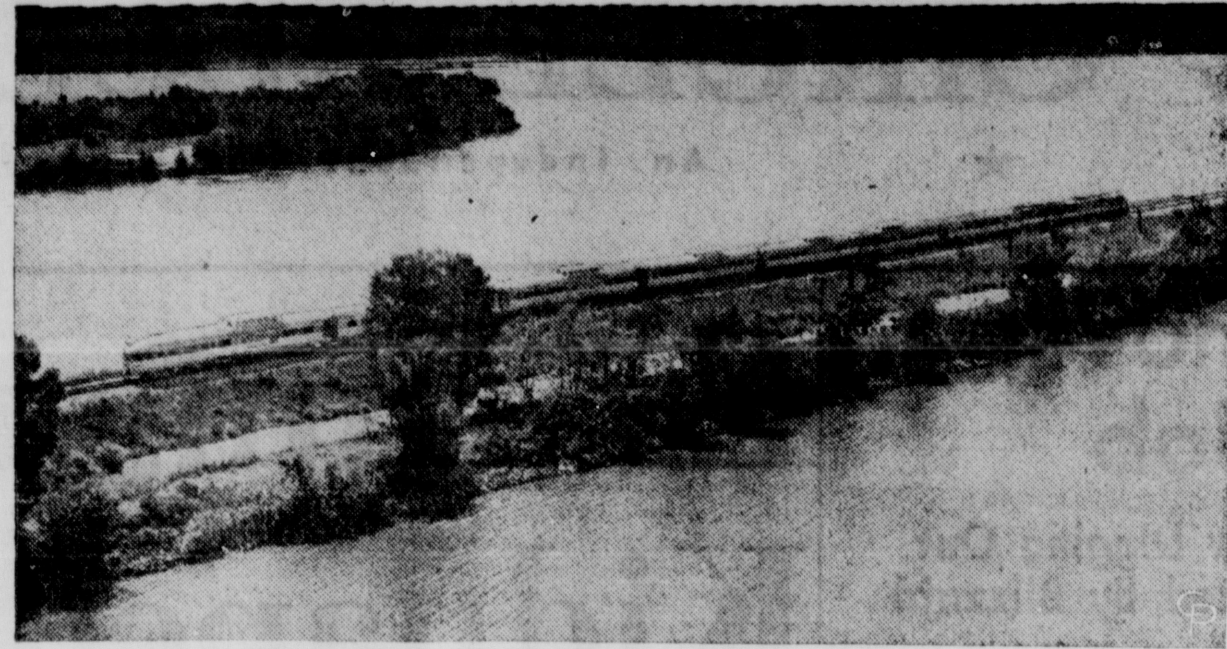

The American Red Cross says it has allocated more than $250,000 for relief of Hungarians in their revolt-torn homeland, in refugee camps in Austria and in the refugee reception center at Camp Kilmer, N. J.

The American Friends Service Committee in Philadelphia set a goal of $100,000 for its Hungarian Relief Fund.

The 73 refugees who won a warm welcome in Milwaukee Friday were assured of homes and jobs before they set foot in American soil. "More than enough" sponsors in Wisconsin offered to meet refugee needs.

In Chicago religious organizations applied to bring five refugee families to that area.

America's fastest train, the Burlington Twin Zephyr, rushes alongside the Mississippi river near Trempealeau, Wis. From Prairie du Chien to La Crosse average speed is 84.4 mph.

U. S. Trains Have Speed, But Europeans Can Top It

Speed records are falling on railroads throughout the United States, but French and Italian crack trains are pushing them for laurels as the world's fastest.

The blistering three-way rivalry out of Chicago to the Twin Cities of Minneapolis-St. Paul, which is one of the great remaining competitive runs in the country, is productive of the best speed marks in the world today, according to an annual survey made for "rail fans" of the nation by Donald M. Steffee.

The Chicago, Burlington and Quincy's twin Zephyrs maintain an average speed of 84.4 miles per hour for a 57.7-mile stretch from Prairie du Chien to La Crosse, Wis. Slightly slower but still 80-plus miles are maintained for similar distances between Prairie du Chien and East Dubuque, Ia.

The Burlington's rivals on the run also hit above-80 speeds. The Chicago and Northwestern's "400" (400 miles in 400 minutes, Chicago to Minneapolis) does it from Kenosha, Wis., to Waukegan, Ill., and the Afternoon Hiawatha, pride of the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific, burns up the rails between New Lisbon and Portage, Wis., at that clip.

IN THE Great Plains where the land stretches like a sea toward the horizon, the Union Pacific's vaunted Challenger races at 80.7 mph from Grand Island to North Platte, Neb. The Golden Gates of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe hit such speeds from Corcoran to Wasco.

A new entry in the competition is the Illinois Central's Panama Limited which goes over 80 mph from Effingham to Centralia, Ill. Fastest train in the east is the Atlantic Coast Line's East Coast Champion which does 78.1 mph from Florence to Charleston, S. C.

Improvements in rails and ballasting of road beds are contributing more to railway speeds than the new streamlined design of passenger trains, because whatever may be said for the old coal-burning iron horse, it was no slouch for speed.

The fastest short run record, however, still is held by the old Pennsylvania's Special, predecessor to the Pennsylvania railroad's Broadway Limited which duels for honors with the New York Central's famous Twentieth Century Limited, set in 1905 on a timed three-mile run at 127.06 miles per hour.

The Interstate Commerce commission, which regulates speeds and has imposed a ceiling of 79 mph over all lines not equipped with automatic train control or where locomotives are not provided with cab signals, permits no attempts to break it.

After the surge of speed in the 1940s by the Zephyrs on the Burlington and the "City" trains of the Union Pacific, the newer lightweight trains have contributed more to economy and comfort than to sheer speed. The Rock Island railroad's new Jet Rockets introduced this year have cut only five minutes from the Chicago to Peoria run.

AMERICAN railroaders have to take their hats off to some of the performances of the French and Italians. The flossiest and most radically designed trains in the world are run the 195.8 miles between Florence and Milan, Italy, at speeds of 100 mph. The world's fastest stop-to-stop run was over that route at a 102 mph average, with top speeds up to 126.

A lightweight streamliner, the pastel-colored Italian train features an observation car at the front, instead of the rear, where passengers can "play engineer," while the real engineer sits in a "blister" giving him a commanding view from a control seat on top of the train.

Spurning all frills and concentrating on power and stamina, the French National railways have the current world speed champion, the swarthy BB 9004 electric locomotive. It looks like a grown-up version of the kind of electric trains kids played with a generation ago, but it touches 107 mph on runs from Paris to Lyon at 90-plus averages for 140 miles.

The first locomotive in the world to break 100 mph was the New York Central's old 99, which ran 112 mph in 1893 and for years was the fastest thing on rails. However, to show that there still are slow trains, the so-called "Main Line Express" from Hobart to Lunenburg, Tasmania (135 miles) holds the du-organ Politka gave this account of what happened next:

The Hungarians, accompanied by two Yugoslav diplomats, entered a bus provided by the Kadar government.

A Soviet officer jumped on the bus in front of the embassy. A car with Soviet security officials pulled in front of the bus and another to its side. The two cars escorted the bus to Soviet headquarters.

The Yugoslav diplomats protested the Russians were violating the Yugoslav-Hungarian agreement. The Russian officer ordered them from the bus.

At the Soviet headquarters, two armored cars replaced the security automobiles and Nagy and his friends were taken away.

Nagy, a life-long Communist once imprisoned for advocating a Titoist course for Hungary, came to power again in the anti-Communist rebellion that erupted last month and swept the country. He brought other political parties into the government, denounced Moscow-sponsored Warsaw military alliance, proclaimed Hungary's neutrality between East and West and called on the United Nations to guarantee his nation's independence.

Then reinforced Soviet tank divisions struck throughout Hungary Nov. 4, ousting Nagy and installing Soviet puppet Janos Kadar as premier. Nagy and many of his followers took sanctuary in the Yugoslav Embassy.

Nagy's return to power and withdrawal of Russian forces from Hungary were the main demands of workers who have refused to work since the Soviet attack. In recent days Kadar told workers' delegations he would welcome Nagy in his government.

Military Order Of Cootie Plans District Meeting At Local VFW

Members of the Second District of the Military Order of Cootie will hold their Winter conference at the Circleville Veterans of Foreign Wars post home on N. Court St. Sunday.

The Military Order of Cootie was organized in 1920 as a fun-making social organization. The organization soon afterwards became affiliated with the VFW of the United States, later becoming the honor degree of this organization.

The main purposes of the Order of Cootie are to promote social and reunion functions among its members, and to keep alive the spirit of optimism and humor so characteristic of American servicemen.

MEMBERS of the order, whose motto is "keep them smiling in beds of white", make monthly visits to hospitals maintained by the Veterans Administration. They also pay visits to other hospitals.

In 1955, Cootie members visited approximately 693,008 disabled veterans in hospitals throughout the nation. The organization traveled over 733,820 miles and spent $744,662 for this specific purpose of making patients more comfortable and happy.

The Cooties are also well-known for their efforts in community betterment projects. An example of this nationwide drive is an outdoor basketball court the local group has constructed at the Pickaway County Children's Home.

The new black-top cage court will be officially turned over to the home within the next few days. The basketball court construction was planned and directed by Pup Tent No. 71, the local Cootie order.

Americans Opening Hearts To Aid Hungarian Refugees

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Americans are opening their hearts and hearths to Hungarian refugees.

Rich and poor have offered money, food, clothing and homes for the frightened victims of Soviet terror in Hungary.

Federal, state and city government agencies are lending a hand. Churches, schools and colleges have been quick with pledges.

The first refugees—wary men, women and children—landed at McGuire Air Force Base in New Jersey last Wednesday. Several hundred more arrived in planes there and at Milwaukee later.

Two more plane loads are due at McGuire today.

The refugees are the vanguard of 5,000 authorized by President Eisenhower to enter the United States. Even more may follow.

Meanwhile, the offers of aid are growing into a flood.

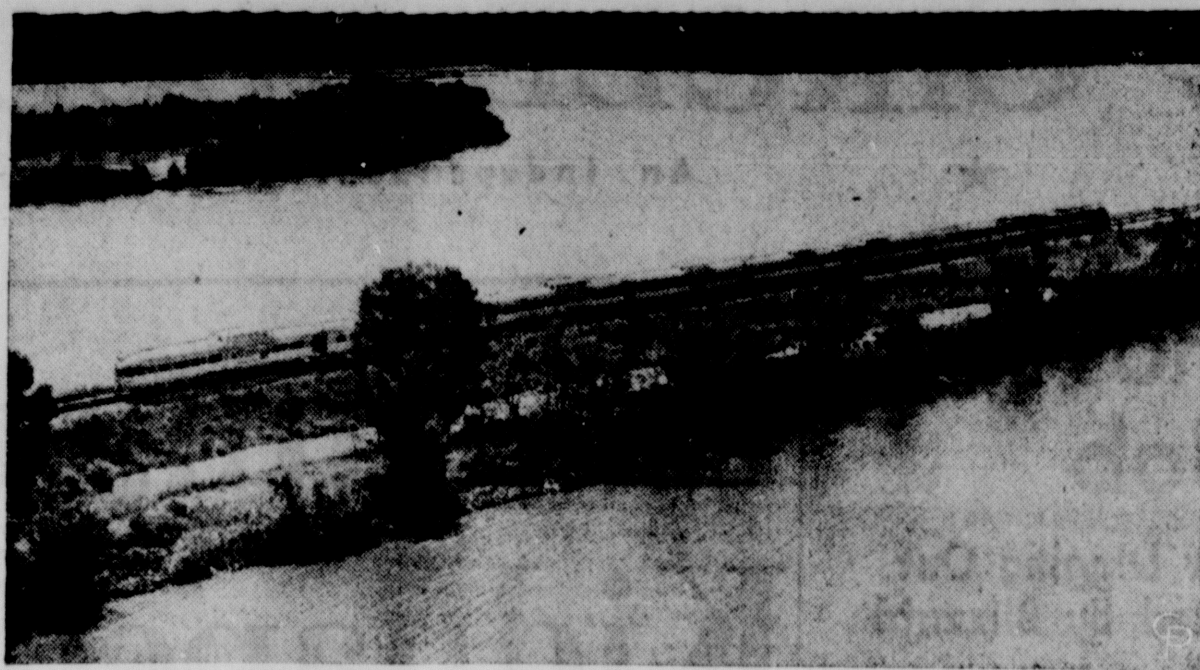

The American Red Cross says it has allocated more than $250,000 for relief of Hungarians in their revolt-torn homeland, in refugee camps in Austria and in the refugee reception center at Camp Kilmer, N. J.

The American Friends Service Committee in Philadelphia set a goal of $100,000 for its Hungarian Relief Fund.

The 73 refugees who won a warm welcome in Milwaukee Friday were assured of homes and jobs before they set foot in American soil. "More than enough" sponsors in Wisconsin offered to meet refugee needs.

In Chicago religious organizations applied to bring five refugee families to that area.

America's fastest train, the Burlington Twin Zephyr, rushes alongside the Mississippi river near Trempealeau, Wis. From Prairie du Chien to La Crosse average speed is 84.4 mph.

U. S. Trains Have Speed, But Europeans Can Top It

Speed records are falling on railroads throughout the United States, but French and Italian crack trains are pushing them for laurels as the world's fastest.

The blistering three-way rivalry out of Chicago to the Twin Cities of Minneapolis-St. Paul, which is one of the great remaining competitive runs in the country, is productive of the best speed marks in the world today, according to an annual survey made for "rail fans" of the nation by Donald M. Steffee.

The Chicago, Burlington and Quincy's twin Zephyrs maintain an average speed of 84.4 miles per hour for a 57.7-mile stretch from Prairie du Chien to La Crosse, Wis. Slightly slower but still 80-plus marks are maintained for similar distances between Prairie du Chien and East Dubuque, Ia.

The Burlington's rivals on the run also hit above-80 speeds. The Chicago and Northwestern's "400" (400 miles in 400 minutes, Chicago to Minneapolis) does it from Kenosha, Wis., to Waukegan, Ill., and the Afternoon Hiawatha, pride of the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific, burns up the rails between New Lisbon and Portage, Wis., at that clip.

IN THE Great Plains where the land stretches like a sea toward the horizon, the Union Pacific's vaunted Challenger races at 80.7 mph from Grand Island to North Platte, Neb. The Golden Gates of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe hit such speeds from Corcoran to Wasco.

A new entry in the competition is the Illinois Central's Panama Limited which goes over 80 mph from Effingham to Centralia, Ill. Fastest train in the east is the Atlantic Coast Line's East Coast Champion which does 78.1 mph from Florence to Charleston, S. C.

Improvements in rails and ballasting of road beds are contributing more to railway speeds than the new streamlined design of passenger trains, because whatever may be said for the old coal-burning iron horse, it was no slouch for speed.

The fastest short run record, however, still is held by the old Pennsylvania's Special, predecessor to the Pennsylvania railroad's Broadway Limited which duels for honors with the New York Central's famous Twentieth Century Limited, set in 1905 on a timed three-mile run at 127.06 miles per hour.

The Interstate Commerce commission, which regulates speeds and has imposed a ceiling of 79 mph over all lines not equipped with automatic train control or where locomotives are not provided with cab signals, permits no attempts to break it.

After the surge of speed in the 1940s by the Zephyrs on the Burlington and the "City" trains of the Union Pacific, the newer lightweight trains have contributed more to economy and comfort than to sheer speed. The Rock Island railroad's new Jet Rockets introduced this year have cut only five minutes from the Chicago to Peoria run.

AMERICAN railroaders have to take their hats off to some of the performances of the French and Italians. The flouziest and most radically designed trains in the world are the 195.8 miles between Florence and Milan, Italy, at speeds of 100 mph. The world's fastest stop-to-stop run was over that route at a 102 mph average, with top speeds up to 126.

A lightweight streamliner, the pastel-colored Italian train features an observation car at the front, instead of the rear, where passengers can "play engineer," while the real engineer sits in a "blister" giving him a commanding view from a control seat on top of the train.

Spurning all frills and concentrating on power and stamina, the French National railways have the current world speed champion, the swarthy BB 9004 electric locomotive. It looks like a grown-up version of the kind of electric trains kids played with a generation ago, but it touches 107 mph on runs from Paris to Lyon at 90-plus averages for 140 miles.

The first locomotive in the world to break 100 mph was the New York Central's old 99, which ran 112 mph in 1893 and for years was the fastest thing on rails. However, to show that there still are slow trains, the so-called "Main Line Express" from Hobart to Launceston, Tasmania (135 miles) holds the dubious distinction of being the slowest "name" train in the world today, averaging 26.6 mph, a tenth of a mile faster than the Soviet Union claims for its 5,800-mile run from Moscow to Vladivostok.

Such trains would have caused no anxiety even back in 1835, when widespread opposition developed in Germany to the first "rapid motion" trains of the Nuernberg railway. An old official report just uncovered there warns: "Such rapid motion cannot but produce in the passengers the mental affliction known as delirium forosium."

Railroad leaders throughout the world give every indication of aiming for faster speed marks, and rails still appear to hold the greatest promise for high speed on the earth's crust, as indicated by the 1,500 mph speeds of the Air Force's experimental jet-powered rail sled which runs on a track similar in size and shape to standard railroads, laid at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif.

Cities Of Ohio Cashing In On Law Violators

Ohio cities received almost three times as much revenue from law violators last year as they did 10 years ago.

Total revenue from fines, costs and forfeitures in 1955 was $9,575,019, according to reports from 141 cities to State Auditor James A. Rhodes.

Ten years ago, when there were 115 cities, total collections from fines, costs and forfeitures amounted to $3,436,497.

A change in the law, which deprived mayors of costs, accounts for part of the increase.

COLUMBUS reported the biggest increase in police court revenue of any city in the state last year. There was an increase from $720,745 in 1954 to $1,045,271 in 1955.

This put Columbus just under Cleveland which reported the largest total in the state for fines, costs and forfeitures, $1,698,988. Reports from other large cities showed: Cincinnati, $843,398; Toledo, $526,741; Akron, $455,819; Dayton, $539,987; Youngstown, $164,445; Canton, $195,851; Springfield, $195,483; Lakewood, $105,509; Cleveland Heights, $50,856; Hamilton, $152,821; Lorain, $119,480; Lima, $84,193; Warren, $109,091; Mansfield, $85,936; Euclid, $80,965; Zanesville, $48,389; East Cleveland, $183,721; Portsmouth, $70,916; Steubenville, $36,898; Norwood, $37,135; Newark, $35,202; Marion, $57,993; Middletown, $113,967.

The first locomotive in the world to break 100 mph was the New York Central's old 99, which ran 112 mph in 1893 and for years was the fastest thing on rails. However, to show that there still are slow trains, the so-called "Main Line Express" from Hobart to Launceston, Tasmania (135 miles) holds the du-

Parking Lot Cost To Total $1,980

Total cost of a parking lot being laid out along the northwestern corner of the Pickaway County courthouse will be $1,980, according to an announcement by the county auditor's office.

County Auditor Verna O'Hara said two contracts covering the job were let earlier this week to George Van Camp.

One, with a bid of $985 is for removing trees, base materials, excavation and removal of a driveway. The other, with a bid of $995, is for furnishing and application of surfacing material.

County Commissioner Bill Goode has said the parking lot is intended for the use of visitors to the courthouse, not for courthouse personnel.

Nagy Feared Forced To Go To Romania

organ Politka gave this account of what happened next:

The Hungarians, accompanied by two Yugoslav diplomats, entered a bus provided by the Kadar government.

A Soviet officer jumped on the bus in front of the embassy. A car with Soviet security officials pulled in front of the bus and another to its side. The two cars escorted the bus to Soviet headquarters.

The Yugoslav diplomats protested the Russians were violating the Yugoslav-Hungarian agreement. The Russian officer ordered them from the bus.

At the Soviet headquarters, two armored cars replaced the security automobiles and Nagy and his friends were taken away.

Nagy, a life-long Communist once imprisoned for advocating a Titoist course for Hungary, came to power again in the anti-Communist rebellion that erupted last month and swept the country. He brought other political parties into the government, denounced Moscow-sponsored Warsaw military alliance, proclaimed Hungary's neutrality between East and West and called on the United Nations to guarantee his nation's independence.

Then reinforced Soviet tank divisions struck throughout Hungary Nov. 4, ousting Nagy and installing Soviet puppet Janos Kadar as premier. Nagy and many of his followers took sanctuary in the Yugoslav Embassy.

Nagy's return to power and withdrawal of Russian forces from Hungary were the main demands of workers who have refused to work since the Soviet attack. In recent days Kadar told workers' delegations he would welcome Nagy in his government.

Special Prayers Are Planned For Hungarian People

Evangelical and Reformed Churches in the United States will observe Sunday as a special day of prayer for Hungary and other lands under Communist domination.

In a special letter to pastors of Evangelical and Reformed Churches, the Rev. Dr. James E. Wagner, president of the church, invited special prayers on that day "for mankind in its present sorrows."

Within the Evangelical and Reformed Church in this country there are nearly 70 Hungarian congregations with a total of approximately 12,000 members. In his message to Evangelical and Reformed pastors Dr. Wagner states:

"Because of contemporary and historical associations with the Reformed Church in Hungary the situation in that country touches us most immediately. Our love and concern will not be limited, however, to Hungary alone, since what is happening there is only part of a larger picture in which similar sorrows and tribulations hover in lowering clouds over Poland, East Germany, Czechoslovakia, and many other lands behind the Iron and Bamboo Curtains."

Dr. Wagner outlines in his message the actions that the denomination's Commission of World Service have taken to alleviate suffering in Hungary, including the contribution of money, food and clothing through Church World Service.

"It is my conviction," says Dr. Wagner, "that thus far we have taken every step possible in view of the rigid tightening of the situation as Russian control continues to exert itself."

Acceptable Worship

Man is by natural inclination a creature of worship. It is a basic desire of mankind to worship as it is to eat. In the absence of the truth as to who and how to worship man invents his own objects and systems of worship.

Jesus laid down the principle of true worship in John 4:24, "God is a Spirit; and they that worship him must worship him in spirit and in truth." From this principle we learn that just anything that is called worship does not make it acceptable, and that just being sincere is not enough. Every form of heathen worship could be justified if this were true. There are three essential qualities laid down in this passage: (1) The right object—God, (2) The right motive—in spirit, and (3) The right act—in truth.

God is the right object of all true worship. Worship that is not directed to the only true God of Heaven is vain worship. Many are they who prostrate themselves before idol gods! In ancient times, the death penalty was pronounced upon those who had "gone and served other gods, and worshipped them, or the sun, or the moon, or any of the host of heaven" (Deut. 17:3-5). Cornelius fell down at Peter's feet, and worshipped him. But Peter raised him up, saying, Stand up; I myself also am a man" (Acts 10:25-26). Paul and Barnabas at Ephesus, in an effort to restrain the multitudes from doing sacrifice unto them, cried out, "We also are men of like passions with you" (Acts 14:18). In praise to Herod, "The people shouted, saying, The voice of a god, and not of a man." Jehovah's displeasure is seen in that "immediately an angel of the Lord smote him, because he gave not God the glory" (Acts 12:21-23). This should serve as a warning today.

Some today—yes many, worship the goddess of pleasure (Phil. 3:18-19), or money (1 Tim. 6:10), or worldly things (1 John 2:15-17). Many who have rejected metal images have made their mental images of God. Consciously or unconsciously, they have made God conform to their likes and dislikes. "Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God. . ." (Mt. 4:10).

Of Such is the Kingdom of God

Some people argue that the words of Christ imply that God's Kingdom belongs to children and not to adults. Indeed, there are some families whose worship habits suggest as much. The youngsters are bundled off to Sunday School; and the grown-ups stay home.

But Biblical scholars have long agreed that Christ's words point to the attitude, not the age, which is the mark of God's Kingdom.

The implicit faith, the humble acceptance, the eager yearning with which children approach Christ's teaching — these are the qualities which belong to God's Kingdom.

Perhaps we are foolishly infatuated with the notion that our children should follow in our footsteps. If we start them in the right direction, the direction of the Church, we may gain much more by following in theirs.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Special Prayers Are Planned For Hungarian People

Evangelical and Reformed Churches in the United States will observe Sunday as a special day of prayer for Hungary and other lands under Communist domination.

In a special letter to pastors of Evangelical and Reformed Churches, the Rev. Dr. James E. Wagner, president of the church, invited special prayers on that day "for mankind in its present sorrows."

Within the Evangelical and Reformed Church in this country there are nearly 70 Hungarian congregations with a total of approximately 12,000 members. In his message to Evangelical and Reformed pastors Dr. Wagner states: "Because of contemporary and historical associations with the Reformed Church in Hungary the situation in that country touches us most immediately. Our love and concern will not be limited, however, to Hungary alone, since what is happening there is only part of a larger picture in which similar sorrows and tribulations hover in lowering clouds over Poland, East Germany, Czechoslovakia, and many other lands behind the Iron and Bamboo Curtains."

Dr. Wagner outlines in his message the actions that the denomination's Commission of World Service have taken to alleviate suffering in Hungary, including the contribution of money, food and clothing through Church World Service.

"It is my conviction," says Dr. Wagner, "that thus far we have taken every step possible in view of the rigid tightening of the situation as Russian control continues to exert itself."

The greatest fortress in the world, from a strategical standpoint is the Rock of Gibraltar in the Mediterranean.

Acceptable Worship

Man is by natural inclination a creature of worship. It is a basic desire of mankind to worship as it is to eat. In the absence of the truth as to who and how to worship man invents his own objects and systems of worship.

Jesus laid down the principle of true worship in John 4:24, "God is a Spirit: and they that worship him must worship him in spirit and in truth." From this principle we learn that just anything that is called worship does not make it acceptable, and that just being sincere is not enough. Every form of heathen worship could be justified if this were true. There are three essential qualities laid down in this passage: (1) The right object—God, (2) The right motive—in spirit, and (3) The right act—in truth.

God is the right object of all true worship. Worship that is not directed to the only true God of Heaven is vain worship. Many are they who prostrate themselves before idol gods! In ancient times, the death penalty was pronounced upon those who had "gone and served other gods, and worshipped them, or the sun, or the moon, or any of the host of heaven" (Deut. 17:3-5). Cornelius fell down at Peter's feet, and "worshipped him. But Peter raised him up, saying, Stand up; I myself also am a man" (Acts 10:25-26). Paul and Barnabas at Ephesus, in an effort to restrain the multitudes from doing sacrifice unto them, cried out, "We also are men of like passions with you" (Acts 14:18). In praise to Herod, "The people shouted, saying, The voice of a god, and not of a man." Jehovah's displeasure is seen in that "immediately an angel of the Lord smote him, because he gave not God the glory" (Acts 12:21-23). This should serve as a warning today.

Some today—yea many, worship the goddess of pleasure (Phil. 3:18-19), or money (1 Tim. 6:10), or worldly things (1 John 2:15-17). Many who have rejected metal images have made their mental images of God. Consciously or unconsciously, they have made God conform to their likes and dislikes. "Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God..." (Mt. 4:10).

Of Such is the Kingdom of God

Some people argue that the words of Christ imply that God's Kingdom belongs to children and not to adults. Indeed, there are some families whose worship habits suggest as much. The youngsters are bundled off to Sunday School; and the grown-ups stay home.

But Biblical scholars have long agreed that Christ's words point to the attitude, not the age, which is the mark of God's Kingdom.

The implicit faith, the humble acceptance, the eager yearning with which children approach Christ's teaching — these are the qualities which belong to God's Kingdom.

Perhaps we are foolishly infatuated with the notion that our children should follow in our footsteps. If we start them in the right direction, the direction of the Church, we may gain much more by following in theirs.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

TIME FOR MODERATION

IN A PRESS conference President Eisenhower said steps will have to be taken to combat the rising cost of living. He said that a fruitful area of effort will be in persuading management and labor to apply moderation to their wage and benefit negotiations. While this seems to be a glibly-deco statement, it is taken to mean that wage demands of unions must be resisted. The budget is well in hand and rising credit is not creating new money and crediting to push up prices of scarce goods. As a result, inflation should no longer be a problem.

But everyone who shops knows that prices have been edging up. Industrial wage contracts elevate costs and these are reflected in prices all along the line. Farm prices have been the sole exception.

The President is in good position to exert pressure against unconscionable union demands. After his stunning defeat of the candidate backed by the AFL-CIO union leaders might hesitate to collide headon with the occupant of the White House.

Management should make a major point of what wage increases and benefits, if any, it can grant without raising the prices of commodities and services.

Inflation takes many forms, none of them good. The dog chases his tail when higher wages are blotted up by higher prices. It is a crime against those on fixed low incomes. The only cure for it is the moderation of pressure for higher costs which result in higher prices.

PLEASE PASS THE ASPIRIN

IN WEBSTER'S dictionary "headache" is defined as: 1. A pain in the head. 2. A vexatious situation or baffling problem.

That the second meaning is more than a figure of speech is suggested by a Louisiana University professor's researches into the occurrence of this common malady. For example, he found headaches commonest among those under age 20. This must always have been a peculiar affliction of the rising generation.

Always the mature has mismanaged the world, learning with the years to wallow more or less contentedly in the mess they made. To the young, this is a vexatious situation conducive to pains in the head, as well as in the neck.

The professor found that 60 per cent of people in general suffer with headaches, which is about right except around the first of the month. However, ladies have more headaches than the gentlemen. That is, they do until they have become widowed. At that point the statistics are consolingly reversed.

The widows have fewer headaches than anybody, which again conforms nicely to the fact that, as promised to the m e e k, they have inherited the earth, or at least that portion of it represented by shares in American corporate enterprise.

POPULAR MOOD ON BONDS

SWINGS OF popular sentiment within a short period are mysterious. That is the case with bond issues.

In 1955 a total of $1.5 billion of proposed bond issues was submitted to the voters across the country and two-thirds of them failed. Voters were called upon to approve or reject a total of $2.7 billion of bond issues in the November elections this year. Nearly $2.3 billion of them were approved.

California voted $800 million for veterans' homes, farm loans and schools. New York's $500 million highway bond issue carried by a two-to-one margin. Ohio approved $90 million for a Korea war veterans' bonus, and Rhode Island $10 million for the same purpose. Texas voters affirmed $100 million of bonds to buy land for veterans. Baltimore endorsed a total of $95 million for various municipal purposes and Philadelphia $47 million.

Why the voters were in a mood to reject most bond issues submitted in 1955, and to accept nearly all such proposals in 1956 despite a tight money market and higher interest rates, is something for students of popular psychology to explain.

NOT EXCITED

WITH THE election out of the way, it might have been expected that the American people would exhibit great concern over the "international situation," as it is frequently dubbed, but there is a notice-

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

These days, we can adopt one of two courses: we can run away from the unpleasant and write on the measurements of ladies who exhibit themselves or we have to deal with the pyramiding miseries of nations which have had no real peace since the beginning of World War I.

There are, of course, those who care for neither fare and who can find amusement watching television by the hour in the semi-gloom which is the best way to see that instrument and exercising their minds by trying to beat the rap, which is what so many television plays are about. Or else, there are the quiz programs which are enriching the accounts of the Internal Revenue Service and incidentally of a few contestants who prove that memory is still a valuable commodity despite the learned educators who no longer believe in memory.

However, it is impossible to escape Poland. World War II, which cost us so much blood and wealth and from which we have not yet recovered, was due to the assumption that war could establish that Poland was protected by treaties which were inviolable. This proved not to be true. Both Nazi Germany and Soviet Russia, in partnership, invaded Poland and that started World War II. The treaties were violated and in due course, one of the violators, Soviet Russia, became our ally. Since then, Poland has become a fief of Soviet Russia and has been treated with unbelievable brutality.

The head of Poland today is Wladyslaw Gomulka, who recently had this to say:

"In the course of past years a great deal of evil has accumulated in Poland's life, much wickedness and painful disappointments. The ideals of socialism, imbued with the spirit of the freedom of man and respect for civic rights, have in practice been greatly distorted. Reality did not bear out words. The heavy toil of the working class and of the entire nation did not yield us the expected fruits. . . ."

Gomulka's disappointment is sad, indeed. But he does not attribute it to the correct cause which is the conquest of his country by the Kremlin, the colonialism of Soviet Russia, the reduction of the Poles to slavery. This he dare not say lest the Russians do to him what they did to the Hungarian Nagy, who is said to be in hiding in the Yugoslav Embassy in Budapest.

But from his speech it is clear that Poland is in a bad way. For instance, Gomulka said:

"... We approach our class, the working class, the intelligentsia, the peasants with full confidence. We tell them that we have mighty production forces, built by the great effort of working people in the course of the past years. But these are not yet being fully exploited. We have considerable resources in our national economy, in thousands of factories and mines, in industry and agriculture, which to a great degree are still being squandered through bad and wasteful economy. . . ."

There it is: "bad and wasteful" economy under socialism and that is not what was expected because it has been assumed by the followers of Marx that a worker's paradise would be produced by the economic program of the Communists. But that program has not worked for any of the colonial satellites who have become sources of supply, areas of exploitation, scenes of oppression and torture of the intellectuals and religious. Men do not work well when they are oppressed; the mind does not produce when it exists in the shadow of fear.

In spite of the Kremlin's pursuit of colonialism, Gomulka said in this speech:

"... We firmly believe that the friendship between Poland and the Soviet Union, based on such Leninist principles, will be a truly fraternal friendship, springing from the heart of the nation and not only from the official policy of the Party and Government. I can assure you that these principles are meeting with ever-increasing understanding and that these principles are shared both by our Party and the Communist Party of the Soviet Union."

Masochism is ugly wherever it appears. National masochism is particularly monstrous and this is an apt description for the tongue that licks the boot of its oppressor. There are those who somehow see some improvement in the condition of the satellite countries. There can be no improvement as long as quislings are available to perform the Kremlin's services.

able lack of excitement in public reaction to the news from abroad.

Whether there is a tinge of fatalism to the complacency with which Americans regard day-to-day happenings in such spots as Hungary and Egypt, or whether the preponderant attitude merely reflects a widely held assumption that things will not get much worse, is a matter of opinion.

But, regardless of the reason, the public is obviously not excited.

CHAPTER 34

WHEN Ralph Tolley landed on my left foot I cried out with a painful groan that was not wholly hypocritical. I sat down on the floor and grabbed my ankle. Poor Mr. Tolley was almost as much in pain as I was.

"No," I said. "My fault."

"Shall I call a doctor?"

"No! No . . . this often happens to me. I'll be all right, except that in about half an hour my ankle will swell like a balloon."

"I'd better call a doctor."

"No! But there's something you can do. You can help me home."

"Of course, certainly."

"You run ahead and find a cab, hold it at the door for me."

"Then I'll come back and help you."

"No!" I said irritably. "Didn't you hear me? I'll be all right for a while. You get the cab, hold it, stay with it. I'll follow you down in a minute."

"All right. . . ."

"And listen. I'd appreciate it if you wouldn't mention this to a soul. If Mr. Tolley heard about my weak ankles . . . well, it would mean a dishonorable discharge for me . . . abject poverty."

"I won't tell a soul."

"And hurry . . . don't stop to talk to anybody!"

"Of course not."

He hurried away. I got to my feet and went to the door of the studio. I waited until I heard an elevator's doors open and close, then I grabbed my coat and headed cautiously for the reception room. Caution was unnecessary; the room was empty.

Twenty minutes later . . . thirty-five minutes to four . . . I was limping into our apartment. Mr. Tolley's hand under my elbow. I let him escort me into the bedroom. I sat on the edge of my bed.

"Would you mind," I said, "my slippers . . . they're in that closet there."

"Not at all," Ralph said.

He opened the closet door, stooped into it to look for the slippers which were under my bed. Swiftly, silently, as treacherous as a lady coyote fighting for her mate, I was behind Ralph. With a diabolical thrust I sent him tumbling into the closet. I slammed shut the door. I locked it.

Inside the closet there was a great thrashing about.

"Mr. Tolley," I called, "listen to me. I'll let you out as soon as I can."

He began pounding at the door, yelping at me.

Tuberculosis Victim Has Hopeful Outlook

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

MORE persons are being treated for tuberculosis today than ever before. It's a good thing. It is because we are treating them that the TB death rate is now relatively low compared with what it once was.

Medical advances have slashed the tuberculosis death toll by 95 per cent since 1900—nearly 75 per cent in the last 10 years. There are now about 10 deaths per 100,000 population. That's about 1 per cent.

Big Reduction

We were able to reduce the number of tuberculosis hospital beds by 3,215 between 1954 and June, 1956.

While there are many drugs which have helped put this once dreaded villain in its proper place, there are three which have been in the forefront of the fight—isoniazid, streptomycin, and para-aminosalicylic acid, called PAS. Frequently they are used in conjunction.

These drugs do not kill all the tubercle bacilli in the patient's body. They do slow up or inhibit multiplication of the micro-organisms.

Great Advantage

Introduction of isoniazid in 1952 provided tuberculosis patients with a drug which could be taken by mouth. Since treatment of tuberculosis of the lung must be continued for at least a year, generalized body disability.

such simple oral therapy is of great advantage. Use of such drugs has enabled us to treat thousands of tuberculosis patients in out-patient clinics after relatively short stays in hospitals. This saves the patients both time and money.

Drop in Price

Like most drugs, isoniazid was fairly expensive when it was first placed on the market. In the four years it has been available, however, the prescription price in retail pharmacies has dropped about 70 per cent. The cost of streptomycin and PAS has also declined.

In most patients who have shown no response to isoniazid and streptomycin therapy, treatment with hormones has brought almost immediate improvement. Surgery methods, too, have improved greatly.

Even though some 400,000 Americans are suffering from active tuberculosis right now, the outlook for them is pretty bright—providing they get early and proper treatment.

TIME FOR MODERATION

IN A PRESS conference President Eisenhower said steps will have to be taken to combat the rising cost of living. He said that a fruitful area of effort will be in persuading management and labor to apply moderation to their wage and benefit negotiations. While this seems to be a glibly-devised statement, it is taken to mean that wage demands of unions must be resisted. The budget is well in hand and rising credit is not creating new money and credit to push up prices of scarce goods. As a result, inflation should no longer be a problem.

But everyone who shops knows that prices have been edging up. Industrial wage contracts elevate costs and these are reflected in prices all along the line. Farm prices have been the sole exception.

The President is in good position to exert pressure against unconscionable union demands. After his stunning defeat of the candidate backed by the AFL-CIO union leaders might hesitate to collide head-on with the occupant of the White House.

Management should make a major point of what wage increases and benefits, if any, it can grant without raising the prices of commodities and services.

Inflation takes many forms, none of them good. The dog chases his tail when higher wages are blotted up by higher prices. It is a crime against those on fixed low incomes. The only cure for it is the moderation of pressure for higher costs which result in higher prices.

PLEASE PASS THE ASPIRIN

IN WEBSTER'S dictionary "headache" is defined as: 1. A pain in the head. 2. A vexatious situation or baffling problem.

That the second meaning is more than a figure of speech is suggested by a Louisiana University professor's researches into the occurrence of this common malady. For example, he found headaches commonest among those under age 20. This must always have been a peculiar affliction of the rising generation.

Always the mature has mismanaged the world, learning with the years to wallow more or less contentedly in the mess they made. To the young, this is a vexatious situation conducive to pains in the head, as well as in the neck.

The professor found that 60 per cent of people in general suffer with headaches, which is about right except around the first of the month. However, ladies have more headaches than the gentlemen. That is, they do until they have become widowed. At that point the statistics are consolingly reversed.

The widows have fewer headaches than anybody, which again conforms nicely to the fact that, as promised to the meek, they have inherited the earth, or at least that portion of it represented by shares in American corporate enterprise.

POPULAR MOOD ON BONDS

SWINGS OF popular sentiment within a short period are mysterious. That is the case with bond issues.

In 1955 a total of $1.5 billion of proposed bond issues was submitted to the voters across the country and two-thirds of them failed. Voters were called upon to approve or reject a total of $2.7 billion of bond issues in the November elections this year. Nearly $2.3 billion of them were approved.

California voted $800 million for veterans' homes, farm loans and schools. New York's $500 million highway bond issue carried by a two-to-one margin. Ohio approved $90 million for a Korea war veterans' bonus, and Rhode Island $10 million for the same purpose. Texas voters affirmed $100 million of bonds to buy land for veterans. Baltimore endorsed a total of $95 million for various municipal purposes and Philadelphia $47 million.

Why the voters were in a mood to reject most bond issues submitted in 1955, and to accept nearly all such proposals in 1956 despite a tight money market and higher interest rates, is something for students of popular psychology to explain.

NOT EXCITED

WITH THE election out of the way, it might have been expected that the American people would exhibit great concern over the "international situation," as it is frequently dubbed, but there is a notice-

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

These days, we can adopt one of two courses: we can run away from the unpleasant and write on the measurements of ladies who exhibit themselves or we have to deal with the pyramiding miseries of nations which have had no real peace since the beginning of World War I.

There are, of course, those who care for neither fare and who can find amusement watching television by the hour in the semi-gloom which is the best way to see that instrument and exercising their minds by trying to beat the rap, which is what so many television plays are about. Or else, there are the quiz programs which are enriching the accounts of the Internal Revenue Service and incidentally of a few contestants who prove that memory is still a valuable commodity despite the learned educators who no longer believe in memory.

However, it is impossible to escape Poland. World War II, which cost us so much blood and wealth and from which we have not yet recovered, was due to the assumption that war could establish that Poland was protected by treaties which were inviolable. This proved not to be true. Both Nazi Germany and Soviet Russia, in partnership, invaded Poland and that started World War II. The treaties were violated and in due course, one of the violators, Soviet Russia, became our ally. Since then, Poland has become a fief of Soviet Russia and has been treated with unbelievable brutality.

The head of Poland today is Wladyslaw Gomulka, who recently had this to say:

"In the course of past years a great deal of evil has accumulated in Poland's life, much wickedness and painful disappointments. The ideals of socialism, imbued with the spirit of the freedom of man and respect for civic rights, have in practice been greatly distorted. Reality did not bear out words. The heavy toil of the working class and of the entire nation did not yield us the expected fruits."

Gomulka's disappointment is sad, indeed. But he does not attribute it to the correct cause which is the conquest of his country by the Kremlin, the colonialism of Soviet Russia, the reduction of the Poles to slavery. This he dare not say lest the Russians do to him what they did to the Hungarian Nagy, who is said to be in hiding in the Yugoslav Embassy in Budapest.

But from his speech it is clear that Poland is in a bad way. For instance, Gomulka said:

"... We approach our class, the working class, the intelligentsia, the peasants with full confidence. We tell them that we have mighty production forces, built by the great effort of working people in the course of the past years. But these are not yet being fully exploited. We have considerable resources in our national economy, in thousands of factories and mines, in industry and agriculture, which to a great degree are still being squandered through bad and wasteful economy."

There it is: "bad and wasteful" economy under socialism and that is not what was expected because it has been assumed by the followers of Marx that a worker's paradise would be produced by the economic program of the Communists. But that program has not worked for any of the colonial satellites who have become sources of supply, areas of exploitation, scenes of oppression and torture of the intellectuals and religious. Men do not work well when they are oppressed; the mind does not produce when it exists in the shadow of fear.

In spite of the Kremlin's pursuit of colonialism, Gomulka said in this speech:

"... We firmly believe that the friendship between Poland and the Soviet Union, based on such Leninist principles, will be a truly fraternal friendship, springing from the heart of the nation and not only from the official policy of the Party and Government. I can assure you that these principles are meeting with ever-increasing understanding and that these principles are shared both by our Party and the Communist Party of the Soviet Union."

Masochism is ugly wherever it appears. National masochism is particularly monstrous and this is an apt description for the tongue that licks the boot of its oppressor. There are those who somehow see some improvement in the condition of the satellite countries. There can be no improvement as long as quislings are available to perform the Kremlin's services.

able lack of excitement in public reaction to the news from abroad.

Whether there is a tinge of fatalism to the complacency with which Americans regard day-to-day happenings in such spots as Hungary and Egypt, or whether the preponderant attitude merely reflects a widely held assumption that things will not get much worse, is a matter of opinion.

But, regardless of the reason, the public is obviously not excited.

CHAPTER 34

WHEN Ralph Tolley landed on my left foot I cried out with a painful groan that was not wholly hypocritical. I sat down on the floor and grabbed my ankle. Poor Mr. Tolley was almost as much in pain as I was. He kept mumbling how sorry he was.

"No," I said. "My fault." "Shall I call a doctor?" "No! No! ... this often happens to me. I'll be all right, except that in about half an hour my ankle will swell like a balloon."

"I'd better call a doctor." "No! But there's something you can do. You can help me home."

"Of course, certainly." "You run ahead and find a cab, hold it at the door for me." "Then I'll come back and help you."

"No!" I said irritably. "Didn't you hear me? I'll be all right for a while. You get the cab, hold it, stay with it. I'll follow you down in a minute." "All right, ..."

"And listen. I'd appreciate it if you wouldn't mention this to a soul. If Mr. Bell heard about my weak ankles ... well, it would mean a dishonorable discharge for me ... subject poverty."

"I won't tell a soul." "And hurry ... don't stop to talk to anybody!" "Of course not."

He hurried away. I got to my feet and went to the door of the studio. I waited until I heard an elevator's doors open and close, then I grabbed my coat and headed cautiously for the reception room. Caution was unnecessary; the room was empty.

Twenty minutes later ... thirty-five minutes to four ... I was jumping into our apartment. Mr. Tolley's hand under my elbow. I let him escort me into the bedroom. I sat on the edge of my bed.

"Would you mind," I said, "my slippers ... they're in that closet there."

"Not at all," Ralph said. He opened the closet door, stooped into it to look for the slippers which were under my bed. Swiftly, silently, as treacherous as a lady coyote fighting for her mate, I was behind Ralph.

With a diabolical thrust I sent him tumbling into the closet. I slammed shut the door. I locked it.

Inside the closet there was a great thrashing about.

"Mr. Tolley," I called, "listen to me. I'll let you out as soon as I can."

He began pounding at the door, yelping at me.

Tuberculosis Victim Has Hopeful Outlook

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

MORE persons are being treated for tuberculosis today than ever before. It's a good thing. It is because we are treating them that the TB death rate is now relatively low compared with what it once was.

Medical advances have slashed the tuberculosis death toll by 85 per cent since 1900—nearly 75 per cent in the last 10 years. There are now about 10 deaths per 100,000 population. That's about 1 per cent.

Big Reduction

We were able to reduce the number of tuberculosis hospital beds by 3,215 between 1954 and June, 1956.

While there are many drugs which have helped put this once dreaded villain in its proper place, there are three which have been in the forefront of the fight—isoniazid, streptomycin, and para-aminosalicylic acid, called PAS. Frequently they are used in conjunction.

such simple oral therapy is of great advantage.

Use of such drugs has enabled us to treat thousands of tuberculosis patients in out-patient clinics after relatively short stays in hospitals. This saves the patients both time and money.

Drop in Price

Like most drugs, isoniazid was fairly expensive when it was first placed on the market. In the four years it has been available, however, the prescription price in retail pharmacies has dropped about 70 per cent. The cost of streptomycin and PAS has also declined.

In most patients who have shown no response to isoniazid and streptomycin therapy, treatment with hormones has brought almost immediate improvement. Surgery methods, too, have improved greatly. Even though some 400,000 Americans are suffering from active tuberculosis right now, the outlook for them is pretty bright—providing they get early and proper treatment.

30th Anniversary Noted At Meet Of Local DAR

Story Of Harp, Title Of Program

Thirty-five members and two guests were in attendance, when the Pickaway Plains Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, celebrated their 30th anniversary as a chapter in the home of Mrs. Charles May.

The highlight of the meeting was the program with a paper by Mrs. Tom Renick and Mrs. M. W. Burkhardt, harpist.

Miss Marie Hamilton, Regent, after a cordial welcome to the members, called the meeting to order, with this thought, "The highest graces of music flows from the feeling of the heart."

The meeting was opened in Ritualistic form by the Regent, assisted by the Chaplain, Mrs. Christian Schwarz. The Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag, was led by the flag chairman, Mrs. Ben Nothstine. One verse of our National anthem was sung, led by Mrs. James Moffitt, and accompanied by Mrs. Martin Cromley.

Miss Hamilton announced that four new members had been accepted into the chapter; Miss Dell Renick, Mrs. C. E. Mahaffy, Mrs. Warner Hedges, and Miss Florence Brown, Ashville.

Cards were sent by our corresponding secretary, Miss Monteluis, to Mrs. Ella Hornbeck, Mrs. Meeker Terwilliger, Mrs. W. Emerson Downing, Mrs. Charles Pugsley, Mrs. William Ulm and Miss Dorothy McArthur.

Mrs. R. Rae Bales, gave a five minute talk on National Defense. Her report was taken from a pamphlet, called "Looking Ahead," and was about the lack of teaching American History in the schools.

The Historian General in her report at Congress last spring said that American schools can become the bulwark for National Defense. The seventh and eighth grades should be the starting point for formal American citizenship education, although much can be done in the class room, the home and the church to lay the foundation in children of an earlier age.

Mrs. Charles May, parliamentarian, reported on House Bill 76, to amend section 331369 of the revised code, relative to the required teaching of basic fundamental subjects in public schools, and the Senate Bill, 2973, concerning mental health, and urged all members to write to the majority and minority leaders and protest this bill.

A letter of thanks in reply to the one written to Mr. James G. Dutton, Deputy Director for Special Activities, Washington, D. C., by Miss Hamilton, thanking him for bringing the Army Field Band to Circleville, during the Pumpkin Show, was read by Mrs. Croman. Miss Hamilton, reported that 15 members of the Pickaway Plains Chapter, were on hand to help The T.B. and Health Association, to label envelopes for Christmas seals.

Miss Hamilton also announced that this meeting was in honor of the following organizing and charter members, who are still living: Organizing members, Miss Edith Haswell, Mrs. Orion King, Miss Dorothy McArthur, Mrs. G. I. Nickerson and Mrs. William Ulm. Charter members, Mrs. Ned Bell, Miss Marie Hamilton, Mrs. George Hamman Jr., Mrs. Charles Pugsley, Mrs. Charles Schleich, Mrs. J. B. Stevenson and Mrs. C. D. Wright.

Mrs. Ben Nothstine, reported that 10 flags and 100 quick cutters had been sold during the Pumpkin Show. Mrs. Martin Cromley, reported on motion pictures; Mrs. Clarence McAbee on Approved Schools, and Miss Betty McCoy, acting chairman for the American Indians, read letters of thanks for the box of clothing sent to the Navajo Schools.

Reports of the secretary and treasurer were given.

Mrs. Lawrence Johnson, program chairman, introduced Mrs. Renick and Mrs. Burkhardt, harpist, who presented the program.

The topic of Mrs. Renick's paper was "That Heavenly Music," the story of the harp.

In her talk, Mrs. Renick said the harp, which is known as the patriarch of musical instruments has stimulated the hearts and minds of men through all ages. Nearly all the ancient races had harps of some form.

In conclusion, Mrs. Renick, said that the harp has been the most revered and the most popular of instruments, and the most neglected. It has been revived only to be abandoned, changed to be revived again. Yet the principle of the instrument has remained the same.

The twang of the hunters bow so intriguing to early man, still casts its spell. The primitive bow harp is a far cry from the polished gleaming instrument of today, and the harp is given life only when man's fingers touch the strings.

At the conclusion of Mrs. Renick's paper, Mrs. Burkhardt, rendered the following selections on the harp: "Echone Erinnerung," by Hahn; "Magic Fountain," by Chalmers; "Swanee River," by Stephen Foster; "Londonderry Air," "Drink To Me Only With Thine Eyes," by Ben Johnson and "Abide With Me."

The meeting closed with Mrs. Kermit Dountz, reading the President General's Thanksgiving message from the DAR Press Digest. In conclusion, the President General said, "On Thanksgiving Day let us all remember our opportunities for service to home and country under God."

A pleasant social hour followed the adjournment of the meeting with Miss Hamilton and Mrs. Bales presiding at the tea table.

Assisting hostesses were: Miss Florence Dutton, Mrs. Lawrence Johnson, Mrs. Arthur Hines, Mrs. Ira Stump, Mrs. Martin Cromley, Mrs. Walter Hedges, Mrs. Walter Kinder and Mrs. Lee Shaner.

Mrs. Donald Watt, will be hostess to the Pickaway Plains Chapter, December 18 at 7:30 p. m.

UN'S 'ANSWER LADY'

Nina Tessier Hears Many Odd Questions

Nina Tessier at her United Nations information desk.

By ESTHER V. W. TUFTY

Central Press Association Correspondent

UNITED NATIONS, New York—The "information girl" at the United Nations can answer almost any question under the sun in four languages.

Nina Tessier, a Canadian citizen but born in Georgia, Russia, is a big-eyed, black-haired, striking-looking woman, who apparently will answer any question except "What's your phone number?"

Many of the seven or eight million visitors who have come to her information center since her arrival in 1949, she finds, are "uninformed about the functions of the United Nations."

For example, Nina tells about a woman from Long Island who owned a tree whose branches hung over into a neighbor's lawn. "The neighbor cut the branches off," says Nina, "and the woman came to me complaining, 'This is an infringement of human rights and what is the United Nations going to do about it?'"

Some surprises come along with the routine questions, including these: "Where do you hide the spies?" and "When is the UN going to send my son overseas to fight?"

Because she meets most of the people who come through the main entrance doors, this alert woman is especially conscious of the "new, relaxed atmosphere," since Geneva, people seeking information "smile more when they ask questions."

30th Anniversary Noted At Meet Of Local DAR

Story Of Harp, Title Of Program

Thirty-five members and two guests were in attendance, when the Pickaway Plains Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, celebrated their 30th anniversary as a chapter in the home of Mrs. Charles May.

The highlight of the meeting was the program with a paper by Mrs. Tom Renick and Mrs. M. W. Burkhardt, harpist.

Miss Marie Hamilton, Regent, after a cordial welcome to the members, called the meeting to order, with this thought, "The highest graces of music flows from the feeling of the heart."

The meeting was opened in Ritualistic form by the Regent, assisted by the Chaplin, Mrs. Christian Schwarz. The Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag, was led by the flag chairman, Mrs. Ben Nothstine. One verse of our National anthem was sung, led by Mrs. James Moffitt, and accompanied by Mrs. Martin Cromley.

Miss Hamilton announced that four new members had been accepted into the chapter: Miss Dell Renick, Mrs. C. E. Mahaffy, Mrs. Warner Hedges, and Miss Florence Brown, Ashville.

Cards were sent by our corresponding secretary, Miss Montelius, to Mrs. Ella Hornbeck, Mrs. Meeker Terwilliger, Mrs. W. Emerson Downing, Mrs. Charles Pugsley, Mrs. William Ulm and Miss Dorothy McArthur.

Mrs. R. Rae Bales, gave a five minute talk on National Defense. Her report was taken from a pamphlet, called "Looking Ahead," and was about the lack of teaching American History in the schools.

The Historian General in her report at Congress last spring said that American schools can become the bulwark for National Defense. The seventh and eighth grades should be the starting point for formal American citizenship education, although much can be done in the class room, the home and the church to lay the foundation in children of an earlier age.

Mrs. Charles May, parliamentarian, reported on House Bill 76, to amend section 331360 of the revised code, relative to the required teaching of basic fundamental subjects in public schools, and the Senate Bill, 2973, concerning mental health, and urged all members to write to the majority and minority leaders and protest this bill.

A letter of thanks in reply to the one written to Mr. James G. Dunton, Deputy Director of Special Activities, Washington, D. C., by Miss Hamilton, thanking him for bringing the Army Field Band to Circleville, during the Pumpkin Show, was read by Mrs. Croman. Miss Hamilton, reported that 15 members of the Pickaway Plains Chapter, were on hand to help The T.B. and Health Association, to label envelopes for Christmas seals.

Miss Hamilton also announced that this meeting was in honor of the following organizing and charter members, who are still living: Organizing members, Miss Edith Haswell, Mrs. Orion King, Miss Dorothy McArthur, Mrs. G. I. Nickerson and Mrs. William Ulm. Charter members, Mrs. Ned Bell, Miss Marie Hamilton, Mrs. George Hamman Jr., Mrs. Charles Pugsley, Mrs. Charles Schleich, Mrs. J. B. Stevenson and Mrs. C. D. Wright.

Mrs. Ben Nothstine, reported that 10 flags and 100 quick cutters had been sold during the Pumpkin Show.

Mrs. Martin Cromley, reported on motion pictures; Mrs. Clarence McAbee on Approved Schools, and Miss Betty McCoy, acting chairman for the American Indians, read letters of thanks for the box of clothing sent to the Navajo Schools.

Reports of the secretary and treasurer were given.

Mrs. Lawrence Johnson, program chairman, introduced Mrs. Renick and Mrs. Burkhardt, harpist, who presented the program.

The topic of Mrs. Renick's paper was "That Heavenly Music," the story of the harp.

In her talk, Mrs. Renick said the harp, which is known as the patriarch of musical instruments has stimulated the hearts and minds of men through all ages. Nearly all the ancient races had harps of some form.

In conclusion, Mrs. Renick said that the harp has been the most revered and the most popular of instruments, and the most neglected. It has been revived only to be abandoned, changed to be revived again. Yet the principle of the instrument has remained the same.

The twang of the hunters bow so intriguing to early man, still casts its spell. The primitive bow harp is a far cry from the polished gleaming instrument of today, and the harp is given life only when man's fingers touch the strings.

At the conclusion of Mrs. Renick's paper, Mrs. Burkhardt, rendered the following selections on the harp: "Echone Erinnerung," by Hahn; "Magic Fountain," by Chalmers; "Swanee River," by Stephen Foster; "Londonderry Air," "Drink To Me Only With Thine Eyes," by Ben Johnson and "Abide With Me."

The meeting closed with Mrs. Kermit Duntz, reading the President General's Thanksgiving message from the DAR Press Digest. In conclusion, the President General said, "On Thanksgiving Day let us all remember our opportunities for service to home and country under God."

A pleasant social hour followed the adjournment of the meeting with Miss Hamilton and Mrs. Bales presiding at the tea table.

Assisting hostesses were: Miss Florence Dunton, Mrs. Lawrence Johnson, Mrs. Arthur Hines, Mrs. Ira Stump, Mrs. Martin Cromley, Mrs. Walter Hedges, Mrs. Walter Kinder and Mrs. Lee Shaner.

Mrs. Donald Watt, will be hostess to the Pickaway Plains Chapter, December 18 at 7:30 p. m.

Betty Jane Gulick Notes Birthday

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Gulick of 138 Hayward St. were hosts for a birthday party honoring their daughter, Betty Jane.

The honored guest celebrated her sixth birthday.

Those attending the party were: Stella Brown, Cindy Reed, Janice Brown, David Wink, Harold Reed, Gloria Reed, Mary Ann Reed, Candy Jane Wilson, Sarah Reed and the honored guest, Betty Jane Gulick.

Games were played by the guests and prizes awarded. Mrs. Gulick was assisted by Gloria Reed.

Booster Banquet Set Wednesday

Most Valuable Tiger Gridder
For 1956 Will Receive Trophy

Circleville High School's 1956 footballers will be guests of honor Wednesday night when the local Booster Club holds its annual gridiron banquet.

The Tiger team, coaches, managers and cheerleaders will be fêted at 6:30 p. m. in the service center of the First Evangelical United Brethren Church by the local sports-minded group.

Toastmaster and main speaker for the evening will be the Rev. Carl G. Zehner, pastor of the local Trinity Lutheran Church.

Other activity planned for the annual dinner will include the introduction of this year's varsity and reserve team members.

THE reserve gridgers, South Central Ohio League champions for the past three seasons, will be presented by assistant coach John Adler.

This year's varsity squad will be introduced by line coach Tom Bennett.

Following the introductions, varsity mentor Steve Bruszniski will give an address concerning the past season. Reserve coach Dick Boyd will discuss some of the highlights of the junior varsity season.

But probably foremost among the thoughts of fans and honored players during the banquet will be:

"Who is Circleville's most valuable player this year?"

An annual feature of the Booster banquet is the presentation of a trophy to the player selected by a panel of Boosters as the "most valuable" in every respect to the team during the past season.

THE SPECIAL award was initiated in 1946 when James Carter became Circleville's first MVP choice.

In 1947, the award went to David (Red) Crawford. Harold (Sandy) Hill took the honor for the next two years.

This year's winner has already been named by the panel, but his name will not be revealed to the public until late in the program during Wednesday night's fete.

The complete list of trophy winners in past years is as follows:

James Carter, '46; David Crawford, '47; Harold Hill, '48 and '49; John Valentine, '50; William Gillis, '51; Fred Davis, '52; Don Skinner and George Troutman, '53 (double award); Don Strawser, '55.

Booster club officials are making efforts to have as many as possible of the past winners present for Wednesday night's banquet.

Local sports fans desiring to attend the annual dinner may do so by purchasing tickets from any Booster Club member.

New College Chapel Blends Modern With Gothic Construction

Wittenberg Has Building; Cost Set $1,550,000

Huge Mural Shows Historical Highlights Of Christian Faith

The way to build a cathedral today, using all the latest discoveries in architecture and building, but retaining the Old World traditions of design, is demonstrated in Springfield, O., by Wittenberg college's newly dedicated Memorial chapel and library.

Could the Gothic lines of the great cathedrals be combined with what the Twentieth Century has developed for such a structure, architect T. Norman Mansell of Philadelphia was asked.

Norman came up with a design for a $1,550,000 building that he calls "contemporary American," although it looks like the European Gothic cathedrals at the same time that it uses more than three miles of pipe buried in the floors for radiant heating, and synthetics like orlon fabric for the great mural.

It is an all-American building, with limestone from Indiana, marble from Missouri, slate from Pennsylvania and Vermont, and flagstone from Tennessee. In this way it follows the traditions of cathedral-building, which often aimed at symbolizing national culture by including materials which were the pride of various localities in the area.

STRICTLY speaking, a cathedral exists only when a church houses the "cathedra" or bishop's throne, and they are of many faiths. Yet this structure succeeds in capturing the atmosphere of a cathedral while ranking as one of the most unusual and distinctive college structures in the world.

A Brookville, O., banker, the late Elgar Weaver, had the idea in 1944 of constructing here in the Midwest on a liberal arts college campus of 2,000 students a church portraying as faithfully as possible the traditions of the world's leading cathedrals, including the Gothic of England and France and the Byzantine of Constantinople.

Subsequently, more than 125,000 other people, many of whom live in foreign countries, added to Weaver's gift of $500,000.

When the Kresge foundation makes a grant of $20,000 on Dec. 1 to match the final gifts totalling $35,000, the building will be debt-free—another "must" in the building of the old-time cathedrals, construction of which sometimes dragged on for centuries until every brick was paid for as the work progressed.

Giving rich symbolism to a contemporary structure was another difficult assignment. The huge mural in very thin oil paint on an orlon base that would have been the delight of Michael Angelo, records the history of the Christian faith.

The Old Testament side begins with the Creation, and then it grows and branches into the stories of Noah and the flood, Moses receiving the Ten Commandments, King David and the prophets Isaiah, Elijah and Amos. The competition reaches its climax in a star, and then the New Testament side depicts the major incidents in the life of Christ.

THE TREE of life and the grapes and vine appear as symbols throughout the elaborate decorations. There is a seven and one-half-ton marble altar from Italy in the sanctuary.

The sharpest departure from customary cathedral construction is in the windows. Instead of presenting the pictures in glass outlined by lead, the Wittenberg windows, which are duplicated in only two other places in the United States, show the graphic portion in lead with the glass as a luminous

Wittenberg college's Weaver Memorial chapel combines Gothic lines with modern construction developments. This view looks into the nave showing elevated clerestory aisle and the huge, modern chandeliers. Floors are radiant heated.

More than 50 different types of crosses appear in the building. Even the Zodiac has its place, because in medieval churches its signs often symbolized the dignity of labor. It was included to pay tribute to the craftsmen who worked in the construction of the Chapel.

In many Old World cathedrals the workmen put little "souvenirs" of their efforts in the form of slogans and even humorous sayings in out-of-the-way places to be found centuries later.

To date none of these has cropped up at Wittenberg.

Ohio Man Freed In Death Probe

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP)—A murder charge against David A. Deuble, 27, native of Canton, Ohio, stemming from the death of his infant son, has been dismissed in Evanston Municipal Court.

Deuble was accused of slapping the baby, Karl, then 16 days old, on March 16. The child died Aug. 19. Two physicians testified the infant died of a congenital disease, hydrocephalus, which causes swelling of the brain.

Judge James M. Corcoran, in dismissing the charge, said he found no connection between the blow and the baby's death.

Arraignment Set For Pen Guard

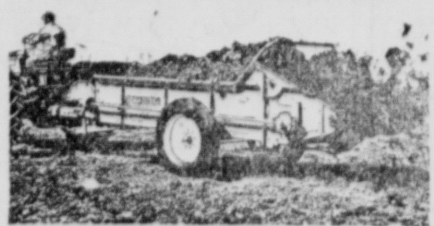

COLUMBUS (AP)—An Ohio Penitentiary guard was to be arraigned in municipal court today on a charge of illegally conveying drugs into the prison.

The charge against Olen E. Roshon, 54, of Basil, was made in an affidavit filed Friday by Warden Ralph W. Alvis.

Roshon was arrested Wednesday when he reported for work. Columbus police said they found 800 pills and capsules of dextroamphetamine in Roshon's lunch bucket.

Police said Roshon admitted smuggling the drugs to inmates but denied accepting money for it.

Noted Opera Star Tells Why He Likes Hymns On Bowery

Opera Star Jerome Hines, at the top of his own career, is reaching out to help unfortunates on New York's Bowery.

The 34-year-old basso, who has had 10 successful seasons with the Metropolitan Opera, often can be found lending his voice to hymns at the Salvation Army's Bowery prayer meetings.

"If one man is helped by my being there," he says, "then my time has been well spent and I am happy."

For the past two years, Hines and his attractive wife, Lucia, a lyric soprano, have devoted much of their spare time to the Salvation Army's rehabilitation work among the Bowery's downtrodden.

Hines has written three operas on the life of Christ and the Passion and has presented scenes from them at the Salvation Army temple in New York City.

A handsome six-foot-sixer, he has worked quietly and deliberately in this offstage role.

"Not many people realize the Salvation Army is also a church," he says. "It has become my church."

Five years ago, Hines said he happened to be in Manhattan's Christ Church and was moved by the testimonial of a Salvation Army officer.

"I was a poor church goer," he confides, "But this man stirred me and I vowed I would some day sing ogy to the Salvation Army."

He kept that secret promise, but did not get to put it into practice until several years later after he began composing the three operas.

He decided to dedicate the trilogy to the Salvation Army.

Hines says he is awed by the selfless service of the army—doing "work that no one else wants to do."

"My God as I knew Him led me to the Bowery and the men who have fallen so far they have no faith left," he says.

Hines lives in a sprawling home at South Orange, N. J., with his wife and sons, David, 2, and infant, Andrew.

Hines explains that he would rather work on the Bowery than be lost in the larger uptown churches.

"When you work with these men," he says, "you can't help but find your own thoughts and character are remolded."

The first vaudeville performance in the United States was at the Gaiety museum in Boston in 1883.

The Stockton and Darlington railway in England was the first public railway in the world.

THE DRIVER'S SEAT

A frightening number of American motorists drive as if death on the highway were as remote as the reindeer of Lapland.

These are the motorists who read the National Safety Council's appalling statistics on traffic deaths, shake their heads, then get into their cars and drive as if they had been reading a comic book. These are the indifferent drivers; the drivers who refuse to be convinced that death on the highway is a hideous fact of American life... that death is coming to their neighbors, fellow churchgoers and useful civic leaders... that it knows no party, sex, age, or economic status.

Through some strange psychological quirk, these motorists apparently convince themselves that accidents can happen to others, but not to them. This, plus a basic selfishness and indifference, are possible explanations of their attitude—an attitude that prompts deep concern on the part of the many public and private groups now devoted to cutting down the tragic waste of life on America's roads and highways.

cords show, 609 traffic deaths were reported in the U. S. from 6 p. m. Friday, Dec. 23, to midnight Monday, Dec. 26. An analysis of these fatalities disclosed these facts:

The "greatest influences" on last year's Christmas traffic toll were excessive speed, drinking and darkness.

In approximately 85 per cent of the cases in which information on speed was given, driving too fast for traffic conditions or in excess limits was listed as the cause of death. Drinking drivers were involved in about 55 per cent of the fatal accidents, although they normally are involved in less than one fourth all fatalities.

But, as the NSC points out, more fatal accidents happened between 6 and 9 p. m. than during any other period of the day, with the second highest period being between 9 p. m. and midnight. Obviously, darkness is

Mother Questioned About Poisonings Among Her Family

HAGERSTOWN, Md. (AP)—A young mother who had been questioned about the arsenic deaths of her husband and two young sons was reported in fair condition today after herself becoming a victim of poisoning.

Mrs. Helen Elizabeth Kidwell lay in the safe Washington County Hospital where her husband and nine children were admitted last week. One of the seven surviving youngsters, ranging in age up to 13, was listed as in serious condition.

The mother was admitted Thursday night. During a session of police questioning about the poisonings, she had complained about swelling in her hands.

William S. Kidwell, the 42-year-old father, died Thursday morning, one week after the deaths of Thomas Kidwell, 1, and Charles Kidwell, 2.

Investigators said arsenic had been found in the family's well water at the house it rented at nearby Kearneyville, W. Va.

Wealth and position among the Navajo Indians are measured by the number of horses an Indian owns.

Sedans are the most popular model of auto among doctors.
